THIS week the senate labor committee listened gravely to a man from Oregon who professed to tell about public sentiment in this state concerning the labor relations act. It seemed from the report of the hearing that this man appeared to be a sort of super-representative of the people of Oregon. Who was the man? His name is Monroe Sweetland.

Now you would think that a person who appears before a senate committee in such an important role would be mighty important or at least well known in the state which he purports to represent. But who is Monroe Sweetland?

After some inquiry around town, this editor has come to the conclusion that the man in question may be known in Portland but apparently not many people down this way have ever heard of him.

An interesting point is involved. How many spokesmen have we in this country appearing before various congressional committees and influencing the nation's lawmaking, who are unknown and largely representing only themselves? They must be numerous.

For that matter, a small group of men jokingly known as the brain trust, have been engaged in attempting to make over and remodel our plan of government. Just who do they represent? What evidence could they possibly have had that the things they proposed to do with our government were the will and desire of the people? If they had no authority, beyond their own determination to do something big and colossal, what right, in a democracy, have such people to make government changes for us? And yet for six years great and sweeping policies have been instituted backed by no greater public demand than the personal opinion of a handful of self-styled intellectuals.

Our government was not established and its constitution was not framed by train trusters—but by representatives of the people.

Our success in 150 years in providing the best standard of living for the highest percentage of our people of any government on earth, has not been accomplished by brain trusters but by a representative form of government.

And beymd all that, the biggest schemes of our current brain trust (Raymond Moley insists upon using the plural "brains trust"—but we will stick by the singular form) have failed miserably to produce the results predicted for them.

But getting back to Sweetland and his activities. He is the executive secretary of the Oregon Commonwealth Federation. Now all we have to find out is what is the commonwealth federation, what it stands for and who are the people forming its membership. Then we will know something about this man who has told congress some startingly new things about Oregon and Oregon public opinion. But will the members of the congressional committee take the trouble to get all of the facts?

The trouble with self-appointed or minority-appointed spokesmen is that they are heavy with ideas but light with responsibility.

Stop Here—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Defranco, of Portland, have left for San Francisco to attend the Golden Gate fair, following a short stop over in this city to visit Mr. and Mrs. James T. Young.

sors with America's might, so that they will be afraid to start wars. A considerable element in congress thinks the way to stay out of war is to pass laws forbidding us to give aid to anyone who fights.

A few nitwits think the way to stay out is to require a popular referendum before war can be declared.

IF America is so fortunate as to stay out of other people's wars (where they have no business to be) it will be because an overwhelming majority of our people have the good common sense to remain unaffected by the IMMENSE PROPAGANDA that is already directed at us in the hope of getting us into other people's wars and the even more immense propaganda that will be poured upon us if the situation abroad gets more critical.

LAWS won't keep us out. BLUFFS won't keep us out. Only horse sense and native gumption can keep us out of other people's wars.

SCHOOL MERGER IS GIVEN APPROVAL

YONCALLA, July 21.—At a recent meeting of the directors and members of Elkhead school, it was decided to consolidate the Elkhead school with the Scotts Valley school. For several years the Elkhead pupils have been coming to the Yoncalla school, but it was decided that it would be cheaper to consolidate than pay a clerk, fees, tuition and bus transportation. After the meeting a party was held, with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Langdon and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Johnson, hostesses. A large crowd was present.

She was married to J. Frank Canney at Anoka, Minn., October 10, 1885. Mr. Canney was one of the first white children born west of the Mississippi river, on the site where Minneapolis now stands. Mr. Canney passed away 26 years ago.

Mrs. Canney was a member of the First Baptist church, Minneapolis, but has been a worker in the Methodist church since coming to Yoncalla. More than one hundred Yoncalla people were present. Members of the drill team are Miss Edna Phillips, captain; Norma Hitchcock, Leta and Lois Brant, Muriel and Dorothy Schlin, Perlie, Laura and Edith Jobe, Patricia Bentell, Yvonne Watson, Twilla and Shirley Schosso and Clara Miller. QUIZ REQUESTS OF 2 JUDGES REFUSED

SALEM, July 20.—(AP)—Gov. Sprague refused Circuit Judge L. H. McMahan's request yesterday for a special prosecutor to investigate the Marion county court.

He also denied County Judge John Siegmund's request for a similar investigation of Judge McMahan's court.

Judge McMahan urged an inquiry to determine whether the county departments had been audited annually and County Judge Siegmund countered with the accusation McMahan had made charges against certain Marion county officials over a period of years but had failed to follow them up in court.

RAMBLINGS

By PAUL JENKINS

"THAT gun," Jim Sharp informed me, pointing to a 20-gauge shotgun standing in a rack, "is a sonovagun for straight shooting. I've used it trap-shooting with splendid results, and one time out at Art Ady's at a turkey shoot—"

But what may interest you even more than the remarkable shooting power of this gun, as proven by the turkeys won that day, is its stock: It's fashioned of myrtle wood, and is a fine piece of work.

Jim, proprietor of a campground, restaurant and service station in Myrtle Creek, is an experienced woodworker, and of all woods he prefers the myrtle. He has a shop with a big lathe and any number of other woodworking tools in it, an extensive stock of seasoned wood, and spends all his spare time (and then some) manufacturing bowls, candleaticks, electric light candelabra, canes, ash receivers, napkin rings and dozens of other novelties.

One of the special prizes of the shop (although he didn't make it himself) is a watch case made in Jerusalem from the myrtle which grows there, and with the name of the historical old city engraved upon it.

"It's seventy-five years old that I know of," Jim told me. "It really isn't for sale—I got it from True Richardson—but of course I suppose if anyone wants it badly enough, they could have it!"

He told me the price he asked, and I agreed with the suggested thought that if anyone did buy it, they would indeed want it mightily.

At that, I'll bet some collector, with an eye for true values, jumps at the opportunity one of these days.

Fire from an overheated boxing on a combine started a grainfield blaze which burned over forty-five acres of barley and vetch stubble on the Eppinger-Hilp ranch south of Myrtle Creek yesterday afternoon, causing, however, very little damage.

The combine—a big one with a ten-foot cut, and hauled by a powerful tractor—had practically finished cutting the field and, when the blaze started, was on the side from which the wind, a brisk one, was blowing. It escaped damage except, perhaps, some holes burned in the draper.

Little grain was damaged, the sacks having been hauled in about as soon as dropped. I saw some fifty or sixty which had been burned over, and the sacking on these had been scorched through. A crew of a dozen men were busy shoveling this grain into new sacks.

But that fine combine outfit had a narrow squeak.

Sunday at the Churches

Daily Devotions

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

The threatening curse of this age is its shallowness with regard to things fundamental. This is not true of the material world when we build skyscrapers, or railroads, or bridges. But we face that danger continuously when we turn to matters of the soul. The practice of veneering is by no means confined to woodwork. It is employed everywhere. This error is far too prevalent in our religious life. Our conceptions of church membership lack depth. Great oak trees never grow in shallow soil. Great buildings never stand on surface foundations. Great civilizations are not reared on sentiment or caprice. It is not otherwise in the building of great Christian characters. They must be established on the Rock Christ Jesus and not on the shifting sand of conventional morality. On the sayings of Jesus, and not on the futile theories of men. Building thus is our only assurance of stability and permanence in the midst of life's temptation. It is our only hope when we come to stand face to face with death. Our Father, Thou hast the words of Eternal life, teach us the high and holy wisdom of walking in Thy way. Amen.

NAVY ENLISTMENTS OF RESERVES BEGUN

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—The navy started today recruiting a "minute man" force of several thousand former sailors, corresponding to the army's new enlisted reserve.

It will be composed of men who have just completed a term of active duty or have been out of the navy less than four years.

The force will be available to complete the crews of warships quickly in event of war. Most warships operate in peacetime with only about 80 per cent of full complements.

An inducement of $20 a year was held out to the recruits. In return the new "class F-2" fleet reservists must keep themselves in physical trim and for four years be ready for emergency recall to active service, but they do not have to drill.

The navy already has a fleet reserve force composed of ex-sailors who have retired to civilian life after completing at least 16 years of service.

INVESTIGATION OF NLRB IS ORDERED

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—The house ordered today a sweeping investigation of the national labor relations board.

N. Y. FAIR LOSING; PERSONNEL PRUNED

NEW YORK, July 19.—(AP)—The New York world's fair has dismissed several hundred employes—including members of its colorfully clad information corps—in an economy move dictated by failure of attendance to come up to expectations.

Officials of the $155,000,000 enterprise, the largest exposition in history, also are offering bargain day tickets this week-end and are considering reducing the admission fee from 75 to 50 cents.

The fair declined to announce the exact number of workers dismissed, but the information service cut was put unofficially at 250. A further cut of between 500 and 600 in the operations personnel has been made, the New York Times said.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 20.—(CP)—Hospital attaches held hope today for the recovery of three-year-old Marilyn Pearson, dangerously burned when her dress caught fire while she and a companion played with matches.
