Today's Pattern

TWO-TO-SIXERS WILL REVEL IN THIS CHARMING BONNET

Can you imagine anything more perfectly designed to enhance the round and dimpled charm of little girlhood? A wingsleeved frock, with a full, flirty skirt and pointed waistline, adorned with sash bows at each side? A bow-trimmed bonnet to shade young eyes from the sun.

Put them together and you have Pattern 8542. Put them on your small daughter and you have a cool, flower-like cherub, very well behaved, because she'll be comfortable and know she looks nice.

Dimity, organdy, batiste, lawn and linen are pretty cottons for this little daisy. Pattern 8542 is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 3 requires 3.5 yard of 25-inch material for bonnet; 7.5 yard for pants; 11 yards for dress; 6.5 yards of bias to trim as pictured. The ensemble in handstitch requires 2.5 yards. The new SPRING AND SUMMER PATTERN BOOK, 32 pages of attractive designs for every size and every occasion is now ready. Photographs show dresses made from these patterns being worn; a feature you will enjoy. Let the charming designs in this new book help you in your sewing. One pattern and the new Spring and Summer Pattern Book—25 cents. Pattern or book alone—15 cents. Send your order to the News-Review, Pattern Department, Roseburg, Oregon.

CCC Has Enough Work Laid Out To Keep Employed for 50 Years

By ROBERT FECHNER
Director, Civilian Conservation Corps

WASHINGTON.—For slightly more than six years the Civilian Conservation Corps has been charting new courses for Uncle Sam in the conservation of youth and natural resources. Sufficient time now has elapsed since the first CCC camp was established on April 17, 1933, to warrant some evaluation of the results of this new movement.

Largely because the Corps' physical accomplishments are available in statistical form, the average man probably is better acquainted with what the CCC has done in the building of new forests and the conservation of farm lands than in other phases of the CCC program. Yet no one acquainted with the work of the Corps can doubt that the work achievements are at least equalled by the results in improved health, mental outlook and earning ability of jobless youth.

Since the first CCC man was enrolled, more than 2,200,000 young men and a considerable number of war veterans, Indians and residents of Alaska, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands have left their homes to work for from a few months to two years in the beautiful outdoor atmosphere of a nationwide chain of CCC camps. Some 4,200 CCC camps of 200 men each have operated for varying lengths of time in national, state and private forests, in national and state parks, on agricultural lands and on wild life refuges.

More Than 1,500 Camps. At present more than 1,500 camps are in operation. At maximum strength these camps have an enrollment of 311,000. Out of the CCC camps each day go some 300,000 enrollees to plant trees, build truck trails, erect fire detection towers, improve grazing conditions, rehabilitate reclamation projects and drainages, conserve water and prevent floods, to conduct campaigns against tree blight and rodents, and to do a host of other jobs related to conserving and rebuilding the nation's resources. Some forest and park officials estimate national forest and park development programs have been advanced from 20 to 30 years. Notwithstanding the large amount of work completed, officials of the Departments of Interior and Agriculture recently advised a Congressional committee that worthwhile conservation projects already planned would keep a CCC of 1,500 camps employed for 50 to 60 years.

Are the results achieved in youth conservation tangible enough to justify a statement that funds expended on this phase of the CCC program have been well spent? I am certain they are. Personally, I feel that nothing we have done through the CCC program is more important than the steps to put discouraged youth on the road toward economic security and useful citizenship.

Of the more than 2,000,000 young men and war veterans who have enrolled in the CCC, a few more than 500,000 were able to find jobs prior to completion of their terms of enrollment. At present an average of 2,000 men leave the camps each month to accept private employment.

CCC Education. Since the camps were launched, the CCC has taught about 75,000 illiterate enrollees to read and write, has added 700,000 to pursue common and high-school subjects and has furnished job training, vocational training, safety and health instruction to more than 1,500,000. Virtually every enrollee has been improved in health. All have been taught to work.

A special effort has been made to turn out good citizens. Classes are taught in citizenship and civics. Every effort is made to derive from the life and activities of the camp those training values which go to strengthen and improve the individual as a citizen in a democracy.

The party visited briefly at the Golden Gate exposition.

BRITONS GUARDED IN TERROR DEEDS

LONDON, July 27.—(AP)—Scotland Yard put Prime Minister Chamberlain and other cabinet members under special guard today, held three men for examination and questioned scores in a search for terrorists following yesterday's series of five bombings.

The explosions, in which one life was lost, occurred as the house of commons adopted drastic measures to combat the outlawed Irish republican army.

Extraordinary precautions were in force today at all railroad stations, including two where bombings occurred in the last 24 hours.

The houses of parliament and the British museum were the objects of closest scrutiny.

Newspapers said Scotland Yard was looking for "a man with a slouch" who was believed seen yesterday at Kings Cross station just before an explosion there with one and perhaps two companions.

Chamberlain told the house of commons "no effort will be spared to bring justice to those who are guilty of these criminal and cowardly attacks" yesterday's bombings.

Here Yesterday—Fred Wallraff, of Camas Valley, was a business visitor in this city yesterday.
