BACK to SCHOOL

19 - EDITION - 39

Let the school bells ring out—now that the long summer is over. Boys bronzed by sun and outdoor play; girls freckled, their hair sprinkled with the gint of sunlight; tiny tots in a state of high excitement over beginning their very first term in a classroom; zealous young men and women returning to school—perhaps for their last term. Let the school bells ring out for all these—who once more will cross the thresholds of learning, when the doors of "little red schoolhouses" and the portals of more imposing school buildings swing open for another year!
