Gift and Late Books Are Now Available at Roseburg Library

Six new books on music are gifts from the Douglas Music Teachers association.

BOOK OF MUSICAL KNOWLEDGE by Arthur Elson. "The Book of Musical Knowledge" will be read with pleasure for its own sake, and will give the reader a thorough knowledge and appreciation of music; while by means of the index it may be used as a handy and very complete work of reference.

MUSIC LOVERS' ENCYCLOPEDIA by Rupert Hughes and Deems Taylor. Its more than nine hundred and fifty pages contain a pronouncing biographical dictionary of composers and musicians. A complete and comprehensive dictionary of terms, explaining in detail every question likely to arise in connection with music; a valuable pronouncing key to sixteen languages; many charts and diagrams; and a special section covering 90 operas, with all the factual information: title, composer, librettist, original source of libretto if from an earlier book or story, date of first performance and where, and a short synopsis of the action.

PADEREWSKI MEMOIRS by Ignace Jan Paderewski and Mary Lawton. The great pianist's autobiography is told up to the beginning of the world war. Later memoirs are in preparation. His musical experiences are the most interesting part of the book. He tells here of poor early training and discouraging advice from Leschetizky and others, and of his determination and grueling work. Details of his private life and stories of countless prominent people are included.

MY WIFE AND I by Louise and Sidney Homer. My Wife and I, the story of Louise and Sidney Homer. The combined autobiography of a composer and biography of his wife, the well-known opera singer, is the history of a happy family life and successful musical careers.

THE ART OF SINGING by William James Henderson. The book offers stimulating retrospective musing for the music lover and technical suggestions for the singer.

WHAT EVERY PIANO PUPIL SHOULD KNOW by C. E. Hamilton.

VOCATIONS FOR GIRLS by Mary Rebecca Lingenfelter and Harry Dexter Kitson. Was added to the collection of gift books from the American Legion auxiliary. This is an inclusive and up-to-date book on occupations for women. The aim of this book is intensely practical—to help girls obtain a vision of the multitude of occupations open to them; to discover the characteristics they should possess for the particular fields; the steps they should take in preparing for various types of careers; the rewards they may expect. The authors have given emphasis to work with machines, work with the hands, work in government and politics, enterprise as well as in clerical jobs, the professions, etc.

DANIEL BOONE, master of the wilderness by John Bakeless, is a gift of the Junior Woman's club. Trapper, Indian fighter, diplomat to the peoples of the forest, Daniel Boone—fighting Quaker from Pennsylvania—was a law-giver to the hardy settlers of the frontier and mastered the Kentucky wilderness from the Cumberlands to the Ohio.

BLUE WATERS by Richard Heise is a gift of the Umpqua Rangers. In this wonderful setting—Crater lake, two thousand feet down in the maw of an extinct volcano, Mr. Heise has woven a dramatic Indian romance. It involves the adventures of a young Indian couple following the urge of love, braving away from their tribe only to find themselves pursued and lost from each other in the timbered wilderness of the rugged Cascades.

Other new books are:

THE TECHNIQUE OF PICTORIAL PHOTOGRAPHY by Paul L. Anderson. Mr. Anderson offers his new book, written for the amateur and professional photographer of 1939. In it are all the current developments in cameras, films, lighting, and processing—and there is a chapter giving complete information about color work. It covers the subject completely in a clear, concise manner, and is by a nationally known authority.

14 RADIO DRAMAS by Douglas Coulter. This book of Columbia Workshop Plays is not only good reading for anyone who enjoys the drama; it is also filled with practical suggestions for writers, and will provide student groups and organizations with copies of the better scripts for study. Mr. Coulter has written a general introduction to the volume and brief notes on each play.

THROUGH EMBASSY EYES by Martha Dodd. This is the outspoken account of more than four years spent in nazi Germany by the daughter of the former American ambassador. Written in a vivid and absorbing style, with the unmistakable mark of sincerity upon it, this book gives close-up views of headline events and people. Thus, incredible and intolerable as this picture of nazi Germany may seem, it nevertheless is of the most intimate and authentic nature.

BLUE BUCKET NUGGETS. A tale of Oregon's lost immigration, by Catherine Cornwall De Moss is an appealing story based on the Blue Bucket legend which permeates the annals of Oregon covered wagon days. The story of the lost immigration that followed the Meek cut-off, has never before been fully told. The caravan, wandering for weeks across the unmarked Oregon desert east of the Cascades, under the leadership of Stephen Meek, lost, beset by Indians, starving, dying of thirst and sickness, has given to history one of the most tragic as well as one of the most inspiring chronicles of the Oregon Trail.
