R. H. S. Hoopsters Down Eugene High

Victors Paced by Earl Wiard in 23-18 Game; University High Defeats Corvallis.

Coach Jim Watts' fighting Indian cagers defeated Eugene high school, 23 to 18, in a regular game played last night on McArthur court in Eugene in the second day's play of the 3-day jamboree. University high school nosed out Corvallis, 28 to 25, in the second contest of the evening's double-header.

The jamboree will draw to a close this evening with another bargain bill, Roseburg taking on Corvallis in the first game starting at 7:30, to be followed by the University-Eugene battle.

The Indians' game with the Axmen was a torrid and exceedingly rough embroiglio. The first half was bitterly fought, the score ending in a 10-10 deadlock, but Roseburg, displaying plenty of fight and courage, came back in the final two periods to nose out their much taller opponents by five points.

Wiard Paces Victors.

Roseburg was paced to its victory by the brilliant playing of its only real tall player, 6-foot-2 Earl Wiard, who was the only man on the quintet tall enough to stay in the mixing under the backboards and he took a terrific beating throughout the four periods of play. Earl's two baskets and five foul conversions were sufficient to give him nine points for runner-up scoring honors to Smith, Eugene guard, who tallied 12 of his team's 18 points.

Both fives posted but five field goals, but the margin of difference came from converted charity tosses, the Indians converting nine out of 20 awarded. Eugene was penalized 13 time for various infractions to Roseburg's six. Hathaway, Eugene center, was the only player forced out of play via the 4-personal route.

Team Full of Fight.

According to word from Coach Watts, the Indians have been way off in their shooting and have displayed a lot of ragged ball-handling but that the entire squad could not be praised highly enough for their real fighting spirit.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., Wife Hurt in Auto Crash

WINCHESTER, Va., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and his wife suffered lacerations and bruises in an automobile accident early today as they were driving to Washington from a northern Virginia party.

They were brought to a hospital after their car rammed a parked truck 23 miles east of Winchester. The young Roosevelts walked into the hospital unassisted, and attendants expressed the belief they would be able to leave later today.

The president's son is a law student at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville where he and his wife, the former Ethel DuPont, maintain their home.

John Locke, 17th century English physician, prescribed bread and beer for children instead of the "prevalent diet of meat and wine." He also that children be kept wholly from melons, grapes, peaches and plums because of their very unwholesome juices." These are all vitamin rich.

Bride, Wedding Party, Walk With Death

A white-clad "bride" with a corsage of roses, followed by train bearers, "bridesmaids" and "ushers," followed the casket of Albert Horvath when he was buried at Pittsburgh, Pa. The "bride," Irene Gerber, who was to have married Horvath, complied with his dying request to, "Please carry out the wedding at my funeral." The strange "wedding" party, above, walked to the tune of a dirge by Gipsy musicians with one vacant place in their ranks—Horvath's. He was stricken with pneumonia while planning for the wedding.

Label Law Goes In Effect January 1

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Foods, drugs and cosmetics moving in interstate commerce, beginning New Year's day, must bear labels listing all ingredients or be subject to seizure by federal authorities.

On that day the strict labeling provisions of the 1938 food, drug and cosmetics act take effect, in an effort to protect consumers against adulterated and misbranded products.

The labels must carry the name and address of the manufacturer, packer or distributor; an accurate statement of contents in weight, measure or numerical count, and a complete list of ingredients.

One exception on the listing of ingredients is made in the case of products for which the food, drug and cosmetic administration has established standards, after holding public hearings. Labels on these products must state whether they are below the standard.

Standards Established

Standards have been set up for a few products, including egg products, canned peaches, canned tomatoes, tomato puree and pulp, catsup, cheese, some types of canned vegetables, preserves and jellies. Standards for hundreds of other products will be established within the next two years.

Other provisions require that artificial flavoring and coloring and chemical preservatives be declared on food labels. Exception is made for artificial coloring in butter, cheese and ice cream. Coal tar colors used in foods, drugs and cosmetics must be among those certified as harmless.

The act forbids the use of containers which are deceptive as to quantity. In this category are glass bottles with thick bottoms, long neck and of excessive thickness, and cartons which conceal deceptive shapes and sizes of containers. Such cartons, if used, must bear a facsimile of the containers.

Wagner Labor Act Overhauling Due

Demands on Congress Piling Up But Compromise Offer From Roosevelt Looms.

By JOSEPH H. SHORT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Demands for a major overhauling of the Wagner labor relations act are piling up for the 1940 congressional session, but President Roosevelt may step in with compromise proposals.

Well - informed congressional sources said today the chief executive has been considering the question but has reached no decision.

Two prominent lawmakers were said to have told Mr. Roosevelt passage of amendments was inevitable, especially in view of the current house committee hearings on the national labor board. White house action, in the opinion of some members, might prevent a long fight and might reduce the extent of the changes.

Another phase of labor legislation which may undergo revision is the wage-hour law. Three sets of amendments are pending in the house and may be debated early in the session, which begins next Wednesday.

3 Sets of Proposals Loom

The Wagner act amendments, unlike the wage-hour proposals, still are in the "committee" stage. That is, committees of both house and senate are studying various projected changes—some advanced by labor, some by industry, some originating with the lawmakers themselves.

Both senate and house labor committees had been holding hearings since last spring when the special house investigating committee was created in August.

The latter group started its hearings early this month and a majority of its members are known to favor major changes in the act.

Congress, therefore, has the prospect of receiving from three separate committees three different sets of proposed changes in the act.

Partiality Charged

Before any of these amendments come forth there is expected to be considerable pulling and hauling within the committees over the political aspects of the many recommendations.

These range from that of the National Association of Manufacturers to limit the right of employes to strike to a CIO proposal for criminal penalties on those who violate the law.

Groups representing industry have contended that the act, as administered, is partial to labor.

The AFL has charge the CIO has been favored and in recent months CIO has charged the board has "leaned over backwards" to the point that CIO has suffered by discrimination favoring AFL.

The board has denied all three charges.

One of the major questions on which congress probably will be asked to pass is: Shall the present board be permitted to continue its administration of the law?

Rep. Ramspeck of Georgia, ranking democrat on the house labor committee, is one of those most insistent that it should not.

Ramspeck said recently that he thought both Chairman J. Warren Madden and Edwin S. Smith, a board member, should resign, adding that if they did not quit he would favor abolishing the present three-man board and creating a new five-man agency.

Ramspeck contended Madden and Smith had "destroyed their usefulness" by participating in board "attempts to assist labor to organize." He said congress, in writing the labor act, had wished to insure to labor the right to organize but did not contemplate active assistance.

The Georgian exempted from the suggested resignations William M. Leiserson, appointed to the board last June. Leiserson has been critical of the board majority's policies on several occasions.

Atlanta Belle to Lead 'Wind' Ball

Here at last, folks, is Atlanta's Scarlett O'Hara. Picked from a blossoming crop of southern debutantes, Miss Margaret Palmer, 20-year-old junior leaguer, was found to have measurements closest to those of Vivien Leigh, who plays Scarlett in the film, "Gone With the Wind." Wearing a Scarlett O'Hara gown, in a town gone wild with the wind, Miss Palmer will be belle of the breeze as she leads the grand march at Atlanta's charity ball the night of the premiere.
