American Legion Auxiliary Activities

Motto: We honor the dead by serving the living.

By MRS. CLAUDE BAKER

Not because it was the popular thing but because it was so essentially the right and helpful thing to do, have the auxiliary leaders taken their offices. Whether it be local, state or national, these offices mean added burdens and very seldom praise. In all phases of service for disabled veterans and for those economically adrift are the auxiliary leaders wholeheartedly interested. They give so freely of their time and talents to make life happier for others through their auxiliary that it is with pleasure that the local unit thinks of its increased membership ranks.

Each year Umpqua unit has been fortunate in its selection of leaders. This year it is headed by a woman, versed in organization. While a resident of Portland she built up her college alumni association to a going organization. She managed many other clubs and coached a number of highly successful plays and operettas there and during her teaching experience. Her enthusiasm never wanes. It is vital, constructive. Like the families of other leaders of the American Legion auxiliary her family contributes its share by backing wife and mother with its support. No leader can do her best work unless the family is in sympathy with her efforts. It is said that the busiest person can always find time for a little more. This is true of both the local president, Mrs. M. R. Richards, and of the district president, Mrs. Roy O. Young. Both women lead a full life of service to the community and yet put their families first.

Now that the holiday season is past, members will find a new desire to help the local unit in its many activities. At the coming meeting Tuesday night, Jan. 16, full membership is desired. Mrs. Roy O. Young will discuss plans for the district conference at North Bend. The park project will be discussed, together with many other important items. The president, Mrs. Richards, has urged that all members be in attendance. She called an executive board meeting which met at the home of Mrs. Ted Post Friday night for a dessert supper. The plans brought up at this meeting will be presented at the regular meeting Tuesday.
