County Health

The battle lines against measles have not yet reached Douglas County. Several hundred cases of measles are reported each week from Portland alone. In other communities health authorities are struggling to combat this foe.

Measles is a very dangerous and contagious disease. It is to be feared chiefly because of the danger of complications from some other disease and because of the possible bad after-effects. The first signs of measles are sneezing, running at the nose and a slight cough. The eyes usually look red and watery and light hurts them. It is during this early period that others are most liable to catch the disease.

The child may appear to have only a cold. He should not be allowed to go to school or to play in the streets at this time, as the disease will be spread to other children.

Our community may be invaded by this dangerous disease at any time. We only hope that this disease will pass by as did influenza in recent months.

A point to be remembered is that measles can be caught through the disease germs the sick person spreads by talking or coughing. For this reason only the doctor and the person who is nursing the patient should enter the sick room. Be sure to follow the doctor's directions for looking after the child's eyes, ears, mouth and nostrils perfectly clean. Discharges from the nose and mouth and running ears should be carefully gathered in clean rags or soft paper tissues and burned. Do not let the child get up until the doctor says it is safe and take him to the doctor in a few months to make sure there are no bad after-effects.

Parents should always keep their child away from other children and immediately send for the family doctor if the child shows signs of measles. The doctor will explain how to care for the child so as to protect him from serious complications.

Seed Lawn Early To Outrun Weeds

When spring comes, nature's children wake, but they do not all get up at the same time. Those grouchy ones are the lazy members of the family. While they loaf there is a grand chance for the grass to get the jump on them. Grass seed is not injured by the cold, so take advantage of an early, cool spring to prepare your lawn.

Cold weather is also a good time to fertilize the lawn. The grass is dormant and the late snow flurries and early rains carry down the fertilizer into the root zone. Do not wait until warm weather to fix up the lawn.

Old lawns need fertilizer, top dressing and re-seeding. A careful program must be worked out to achieve a better than average lawn.

As friable soil is essential for a good root system, soil rich in organic matter is needed. Humus should be added, for roots cannot penetrate hard clay soil nor grow healthy in a too sandy soil. For the new lawn, humus must be incorporated at time of building and worked into the old lawn in form of top dressing.

Weeds grow better in an acid soil; grass grows best in a soil nearly neutral.

A complete fertilizer (5-8-5, 5-10-5 or 12-12-12) analysis is applied 15 pounds per 1000 square feet when top dressing established lawns, and 50 pounds per 1000 square feet on a new lawn. Spread again in the early autumn, Rake and water in well.

The quantity of seed required depends upon type of grass desired. General purpose mixture is applied at the rate of 8 pounds per 1000 square feet for a new lawn, 4 pounds when re-seeding and half this quantity when creeping Ben seed is sown. Use only the best quality of seed, or it will prove the most economical in the end.

Rake in lightly and roll with a light roller. Rolling a new lawn presses the seed into the soil and rolling an established lawn in the spring presses the grass roots back after they have been heaved out by the frost.

Water immediately after seeding and soak well, so roots do not dry out.

First cutting should be when grass is two inches tall. Only bent lawns should be cut close to the ground. Other grasses should be 1 1/2 inches in height.
