POET'S CORNER

MY EASTER SERVICE

At Easter time, on our ranch, The world is all aglisten, And those of us who love it, Have to pause and look and listen.

The hills are lovely emerald Green, Like inland jewels are flowers, They draw me like a magnet, I could wander there for hours.

On beyond those loom the forest Dark, impersonal and calm, Holding power to soothe the weary Like the words of some sweet psalm.

I can hear the creek's soft music, On its banks gleam moss and fern Trees with buds just now a-bursting, Beauty every way I turn.

Oh, it seems a vast cathedral Fashioned solely by His hands, And I stand enthralled to worship, I feel sure He understands.

—Florence Pfaff.
