POET'S CORNER

THE SOUL OF A SONG

I sought the meaning
Out of a song,
As one would search
Earnest and long.

For I was sure
A heart lay hidden,
Where the wheels of time
Had roughly ridden.

Where someone had left
Ere he should die,
A gift, not buried
Where he would lie.

The soul of a song
Growing richer with age,
Tattered and torn
And dim on the page.

And eyes grow dim
As they search the meaning,
After time had harvested
Its silvery gleaming.

Ice Break Prizes Awaiting Alaskans

NENANA, Alaska, April 5.—(AP)—A tripod, carrying the wire to a guarded electric clock, stood on the Tanana river ice here today, challenging all Alaskans to fatten their purses by guessing what day, hour and minute the clock will stop.

When the ice moves, the wire will draw taut and trip a mechanism stopping the clock. The prize money in the 23-year-old contest will go to the persons whose guesses most nearly approximate the time of the spring breakup.

The ice is thick, but riddled by cracks, and the thousands of guessers from all over the territory are using everything from just simple, unscientific "hunches" to elaborate mathematical and meteorological formulas in Alaska's most popular indoor winter sport.

Earliest recorded date for the ice movement was 4:03 p. m. April 26, 1926; latest, May 15, 1935, at 1:32 p. m.

Interest naturally lies in the breakup for it means the beginning of navigation on the interior rivers, including the mighty Yukon, and the coming of another season of mining activity.

Last year, when the ice went out at 1:26 p. m. April 29, nine Alaskans divided $
