Mature Women Can Dress Just as Smartly as "Cuties"

SCREEN "MOTHER" IS GOOD EXAMPLE OF THE TYPE

By LUCIE NEVILLE
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD.—A reader wrote to ask despondently, "Aren't there any women in Hollywood except cuties? No movie stars over 40 or mature actresses who dress well and will pose for fashion pictures?"

BUILDS COSTUMES AROUND FIGURE'S SHORTCOMINGS

Spring Byington, screen mother of the Jones family, wears an everyday dress of small figured blue and white silk print, designed by Odette Myrtle. Its shaped belt, skirt bands and turn-down collar of navy blue crepe are slimming points. Platform shoes and navy wind-it-yourself turban add height.

Well, sir—there's Spring Byington. She has two grown daughters, and acts her age on the screen as mother of the Jones family. With a practical mind under her frigid, shibboleth party bangs, Miss Byington knows her figure problems and builds her costumes around them, not around her best points.

SOME CLOTHES CAN'T BE BOUGHT READY-MADE

"Some women's figures deviate so much from any standard that clothes can't be bought ready-made and altered for them," Miss Byington said.

"It's almost impossible to buy the most useful dress I own—a plain black one with not a single bit of trimming or color on it. Princess Anna Eristoff has made me one of black Baghera Jersey. That's an all-year fabric, between wool and silk jersey in warmth, and easier for mature figures than the shiny silk jerseys. To this I add all sort of neckwear."

"It has a high round neckline but doesn't smother me, and thick shirring on the upper shoulder gives shoulder width without shoulder padding—you have to have a young neck for that."

Hearkening to women whose figures aren't young enough to wear every season's styles, is Miss Byington's opinion: "I don't believe in the current vogue of trying to change your type every time a new waistline comes in. Start from where and what you are, and make it better."

BWARE OF HIGH NECKLINES

"Necklines are important for mature women and the high, plain ones of this season may make you look dowdy. Best trick I know to counteract this is to neck a collar front and back, about an inch and a half deep—a heart shape cut to give the effect of a slimmer neck and face. The right necklines will do wonders, too—not a long string of beads or a chain, but one of the new choker necklaces that has pendants or tassels."

"And I know high heels are the most flattering kind but you can't wear them if you've feet hurt. There is a height of heel that is graceful but not too high. Judge for yourself from the shoe that has been the most satisfactory to you."

A basic frock of black Baghera jersey, a Princess Anna Eristoff model, goes formal with the addition of a cutwork white organdy and lace vees. Upper-sleeve shirring and wide shoulders need no padding. Black-stitched white gloves and a rolled trowel of rough white straw, bound and veiled in black, keep the smart two-tone color scheme.

Mrs. Edwin G. Young Presents Easter Program at Woman's Club on Tuesday

Mrs. Edwin G. Young acted as chairman of the interesting Easter program presented at the Roseburg Woman's club Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Refreshments were served at the clubhouse Tuesday afternoon with the members of the Belleview club as guests of honor. Mrs. Will H. Gerretsen, hostess chairman, was assisted by Mrs. C. H. Bailey, Mrs. J. Roland Parker and Mrs. R. L. Whipple.

The tables were beautifully appointed with bouquets of Japanese roses, money plant blossoms, tulips and spruce.

Covers were placed for Mrs. L. A. Wells, president of the Roseburg club; Mrs. J. J. Kester, president of the Belleview club; Mrs. Edwin G. Young and daughter, Miss Barbara; Mrs. Homer Grow, Mrs. Vera McClintock Jones, Mrs. E. G. Kohlhaagen, Mrs. G. V. Wimberly, Mrs. C. E. Roberts, Mrs. L. Robinson, Mrs. Alice Fisher, Mrs. J. K.
