ALL-DAY INSTITUTE ENJOYED BY COUNTY W.C.T.U. WEDNESDAY

Douglas county W.C.T.U. Institute met in the Baptist church at 10 o'clock Wednesday with county president, Mrs. Earl Akee, presiding. Mrs. Mack Brown read the devotion from the first chapter of St. John using as her subject, "I am the Voice of one crying in the wilderness."

The following committees were appointed by Mrs. Akee: Publicity, Mrs. C. A. Edwards, Mrs. Wanda Jurgens, Mrs. T. H. Wolford; courtesies, Mrs. W. Leeper; Mrs. V. J. Micelli; membership, Mrs. Louis Kobihagen, Mrs. Hugh Harrison and Mrs. J. W. Howard; Mrs. Howard spoke on the subject of "Why I Belong to the W.C.T.U.," giving as her reason the fact that it is the only women's organization that teaches total abstinence and abolition of liquor, and the only women's organization that sends out trained specialists to teach the effects of alcohol. She brought out the fact that it has 22 departments in which experienced workers carry on education in school and Sunday school.

Mrs. Akee next gave a short talk on the total abstinence which she said bridges the gap between the Loyal Temperance Legion and the W.C.T.U. and trains young mothers in the best method to educate their children on the liquor problem.

Mrs. Fred Southwick spoke of the L.T.U., stating that the home has the most important place to teach the children of the evils of liquor, and that the Sunday school and church were next most important place; but that the Sunday school and church lack time and material to give the necessary training.

Mrs. Anna Russell gave new ways of presenting programs, suggesting that children's programs be worked in an effort to attract the mothers, and that silver teas be given for the general public, and that meetings with the school teachers and the P.T.A. be held.

Mrs. J. H. Wolford spoke on the topic, "Membership Program for the Coming Year," pointing out that the great need is to arouse public interest in the work of the W.C.T.U.; and what the W.C.T.U. is trying to do in the line of protection against liquor and narcotics and obscene literature.

Mrs. Lytle, from the Douglas county health unit, said that because of the general health of people living in the country is poorer than that of the people living in the cities, the U. S. health bureau gives aid to rural citizens up to 40 per cent of their budget. Their work is the prevention of contagious diseases through vaccination and isolation. Mrs. Lytle stated that from 1921 to 1926 in nine of the northwestern states there were 28,000 cases of small pox; and in the same period in New Jersey there was not one case because of the fact that they had compulsory vaccination. The health unit is educating the public along health lines and works for the control of tuberculosis. In one district in the southern part of our country of 76 the health unit is now working to find the carrier. Mrs. Lytle asked people tested 33 were positive and that everyone report any suspicious cases of tuberculosis or contagious diseases.

Mrs. J. W. Howard closed the morning session with prayer, following which a delicious luncheon was served by the ladies of the Baptist church.

The afternoon session was opened with devotion by Rev. H. P. Scoone reading from the 6th chapter of Galatians and speaking of the three burdens. 1. Everyone should bear his own burden; 2. Bear ye one another's burdens; 3. Cast your burdens on the Lord. Rev. Scoone also spoke on "What ye sow ye shall ye reap. If ye sow spiritual seed ye shall reap spiritual fruit." "Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season ye shall reap if ye faint not."

Mrs. V. J. Micelli spoke on faith and exhibits, a campaign among those that are not members of the W.C.T.U. She urged that every member make something for these fairs. She pointed out that the W.C.T.U. is comparatively insignificant in small groups but that we are quietly going about doing a very fine work in national affairs.

The state president's remarks were read by Mrs. Earl Akee as follows: The liquor traffic is spending close to $50,000,000 annually in promotional advertising and is pouring into its victims a total of 1,856,611,736 gallons of all kinds of liquor. The drinking problem is as great a problem as keeping the youngsters out of taverns. The Keeley institute reports that 77 per cent of its women patients in a single year were housewives. In 1937 the expenditure for public education was slightly more than two billion dollars, while during the same 12 months three billion six hundred million dollars were spent for liquor. During the first six months of the repeal period, state and national government expended more than $10,000,000,000 to relieve the needy and unemployed, and during the same time the liquor traffic had taken in more than $1,000,000,000. It was stated that liquor sales would help the farmers because of the grain used in the manufacture of liquor, there is 309,000 acres of grain used; they forecast to say that this is only one-tenth of one per cent of the total amount of grain raised, and there has been 40 per cent decrease in the amount of milk consumed. The liquor bill in Oregon is $28.00 per capita per year.

Mrs. Paul Godde gave a very interesting talk, setting forth that one of the arguments that was presented in favor of repeal was that people should obtain food, clothing, liquor and obtain revenue from same; but that the great advertising campaign which brings liquor to children's notice was not expected. The liquor interests are conducting a crusade to make drunkards of us and the advertising is the worst thing we have to deal with. Mr. Geddes stated that he believed that half of the high school boys smoke and that most of it was brought about by advertising, and that in his opinion, the way to get at this evil was through public opinion and legislation. In 1938 the Johnson bill was introduced in the senate making it unlawful to advertise liquor over the radio and two and one quarter million parents through different organizations urged the passage of this bill. 428 stations of the National Association of Broadcasters requested congress to ban liquor advertising, and still congress has done absolutely nothing about it. Letters from the W.C.T.U. and churches all over the country have been sent in but still the bill isn't acted upon. The radio commission can refuse to renew licenses of stations who advertise liquor, but we have a law making body whose duty it should be to make laws for the commission to enforce. Congress seems to be side-stepping the responsibility. The W.C.T.U. should work on this one issue and see that it is carried through. Millions who take a drink themselves now and then do not believe in financing liquor before our children and so would stand with the W.C.T.U.

As regard local conditions Mr. Geddes stated that it is the fortified wines and mixed drinks that are playing havoc; that 90 per cent of the fortified liquor cases are due to fortified wines and mixed drinks that the W.C.T.U. work through legislation on this problem.

The afternoon session closed with questions about the W.C.T.U. work, answered by Mrs. Akee.

At 4:15 the L.T.U. gave a program and silver medal speaking contest with Margaret Harvey winning first place.

Careful weight alone does not determine a diamond's value. Color, cutting, and the degree of perfection all influence the value greatly.

What QUALITIES measure its value?

CARAT WEIGHT is often the only consideration by which the layman judges the worth of a diamond. But if you seek real value and quality, these three other characteristics must also be considered:

CUTTING. The style and accuracy of cutting control the brilliance of a finished diamond—greatly affect its worth as an ornament and heirloom.

PERFECTION. The degree of perfection, or freedom from flaws, influences the value of any stone. Many classifications separate the flawless diamond from the visibly imperfect.

COLOR. Traditionally, a diamond is colorless and called white, or more often blue-white. Tinges of yellow or brown decrease its desirability.

We shall gladly show you stones in which these qualities are present to varying degrees... knowledge which will aid you in the intelligent choice of the diamond you are seeking.
