A NIGHT or so ago we had the questionable pleasure of listening to a radio debate by representatives of the two major parties.

It was interesting to note that each side claimed the good points advanced by the other and each side appeared to be seeking votes with statements that were designed to meet with popular approval.

There did not appear to be any too much effort toward enunciating sound basic principles that might or might not be applauded but that would be stuck to nevertheless.

Present day political effort is like that. Possibly politicians have always used the same tactics—it is so long between presidential elections that one tends to forget.

But through the screen of sugar-coated promises one who was patient enough to go so might sift out these two thoughts: The new deal policy—it was enunciated by Robert H. Jackson—is to provide jobs for people by borrowing a public credit and spending money to create work. The argument runs something like this: "If we put men to work in this manner purchasing power will be provided that will go into the channels of trade and start the wheels of industry turning." (That has been the policy for nearly eight years and the plan has not yet started the wheels revolving to any extent.)

The republican party theory, as stated by Dr. Glenn Frank, is to encourage industry, keep government out of business, and relieve employers of excessive and punitive taxes. By creating a situation that is favorable to business expansion more employment will result.

In defense of this idea may it be noted that the inauguration of a WPA project here that would employ 100 men is only stolidly accepted—almost unnoticed. But let it be announced that a new industrial plant, say a sawmill or veneer plant, is to be built here and you will notice a surge of excitement and enthusiasm. Just multiply that example by a hundred thousand and you have the national picture.

This writer noticed, as he listened to Robert Jackson, that the speaker seemed to be taking for granted that the present administration would be seeking re-election this fall. All references were to the success of new deal policies (mentioned by the name new deal) and all implications were that the new deal sought to continue in power. On the other hand if the president is not interested in re-election, why are his supporters boosting him in state primary elections?

tary information, as if the British navy has lived up fully to the glorious tradition of Nelson.

CHURCHILL adds: "We have greatly gained by what has happened in Scandinavia. Hitler has made as great a strategic error as Napoleon when he invaded Spain."

(It was in Spain that the British, after nearly a quarter of a century of humiliation, finally got Napoleon out on the limb where they wanted him.)

If what Churchill says is true, Hitler fell into a trap when he launched his Scandinavian blitzkrieg.

Sacto infielder Gets Broken Leg

Team Posts Victory, However, Over Beavers, 4-1; Padres Citing to League Lead.

(By the Associated Press)

The remainder of the 1940 baseball season will be only a passing show for Roy Pfeiffer, Sacramento second baseman, who came out of an attempted double play last night with his left leg broken in two places.

Pfeiffer and Frank Hawkins, Portland second baseman, collided in the second inning and the Senator infielder hit the dirt. Sacramento, however, went on to win the game, 4-1, thanks to Blatner's homer in the fourth with two men on base.

The San Diego Padres scored four runs in the ninth to swipe victory from Oakland, 5 to 4. The Oaks went one up on the Padres in the second Cecil Dunn's four-bagger which also scored Gudat. They also added tallies in the sixth and seventh, and seemed to have the game safely tucked away, until the eighth frame when the Padres put on their Jesse James act.

Los Angeles got the most hits, but Hollywood came through with the majority of runs to triumph, 6-3, in a contest featuring the teams' respective managers, Bill Sweeney, the star's pilot, homered in the first inning with a man on base. Ross Stutz who also covers centerfield for the Angels accounted for all his team's runs, driving in two and scoring the other.

Mal Turpin Losses. San Francisco's 3-1 victory over Seattle ended this series two all to date. The Seals scored twice in the second inning and added another tally in the third, tapping Hal Turpin for his hit in the two innings. Turpin made a way for a pinch hitter and Simmons went to the box in the seventh. Egerly, optioned to the Seals by the Chicago Cubs, was credited with the victory, his first of the season.

SACRAMENTO, April 12.—(AP)—Night game. Portland 0-0, 0-0, 0-0—1 7 2. Sacramento 1-0, 0-0, 0-0—1 7 2. Hrkofec, Orrell (6) and Fernandez; Schmidt and Ogdowick.

League Standings. Team W. L. Pct. San Diego 9 3 .750. Oakland 8 5 .615. Seattle 7 6 .538. Los Angeles 6 6 .500. Hollywood 6 7 .462. Portland 5 8 .385. San Francisco 4 9 .305.

RHS Track Team Wins Second Place

Coach Jim Watts' track and field team garnered second place in the 1940-41 Division of the fourth annual Hayward relay held Friday afternoon at Hayward field in Berkeley.

Grants Pass high school nosed out Roseburg for first place, 8 to 8 points. Medford high school won first place in Class A, with Salem second. Twenty-six high schools competed in the meet.

The Indian elder artists won second place in the 40-yard relay and in the sprint-medley, and took third in the shot put relay to amass their eight points. Grants Pass won all three events.

The Roseburg sprint team of Hershel Byrd, Jack Weaver, Roger Olmstead and Jim Finlay finished only 20th-seconds behind the Cavemen in the 40 relay, which was won in the fast time of 46.4 seconds.

Cottage Grove finished third and McMinnville fourth. The same Indian runners finished only fourth-second behind Grants Pass in the medley, the latter winning in 1:12.3 to the Indians' 1:12.9. Springfield was third and University high fourth.

The local weight-beavers, Erbert Carmon, Orville Jennings and Ted Thompson, shot for the combined total distance of 108 feet 3.8 inches. Coquille won the event with a distance of 130 feet 9 inches, but since it was competing in the Class C division, the points were not allowed in Class B competition.

Grants Pass was given first and Roseburg third, when Sweethome, also a Class C school, had to relinquish the points won to Class B schools.

Roseburg High Tennis Team Beats Coos River

The Roseburg high school tennis team had easy sailing Friday in defeating Coos River high school 7 to 0 in a tennis tournament played on the local court.

The Roseburg team took all matches in straight sets over their inexperienced rivals.

The racket swingers, however, are anticipating a much tougher assignment tonight when they journey to Grants Pass for a return match here 4 to 1. However, the team tonight will be playing for the first time under lights, while Grants Pass, at the same time, will have the advantage of being on their home court.

Scores in yesterday's games were: Singles—Carstens, R. vs. Davis, CR, 6-0; Cooy, R. vs. Carl, CR, 6-1; Campbell, R. vs. Barnes, CR, 6-1; Kess, R. vs. Keever, CR, 6-1; McLaughlin, R. vs. Van Burcher, CR, 6-0, 6-2.

Doubles—Carstens and Cooy vs. Davis and Carl, 6-3, 6-2; Noss and McLaughlin vs. Barnes and Keever, 6-1, 6-0.

Girls Return Here—Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gilder have returned to their home in Laurelwood, following several days in Seattle, where the former attended a meeting of Richfield company distributors. They stopped over in Olympia en route home to visit relatives and friends.

I DON'T WANT ANYTHING RIGHT NOW... TWO, FOUR, SIX--YOU GO AHEAD, I WANT TO FIGURE WHAT THE CHANCES ARE OF WINNING ON THIS PUNCH BOARD.

GOOD GOSH! HE'S GONNA GET A FREE LUNCH AN-AM A PROFIT! YOU SEE IF HE DON'T-- THIS STUFF SUDDENLY HAS LOST ITS TASTE!

I'M RESIGNED TO MY FATE--MY LOVE OF FOOD OVERCAME MY BUSINESS SENSE-- THAT'S NATURE BUILDING ME UP FOR HARD LABOR-- WHY, EVERY TIME I SMELL A BAKE SHOP I LOSE MY HEAD--SO--

DAILY DEVOTIONS DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS

"Thy kingdom come." How amazing this little three-worded petition is! Think what it would mean, should it become reality. Suppose everything in this world were brought into conformity with the divine will. Injustice in every relationship would be banished from the earth. Drunkenness, gambling, profanity, prosperity of evil would have to go. War, and the things that cause it, hate, suspicion, greed, strife for power and position would have to go. Heartache, hopelessness and despair would all be gone. Who is able to name all these changes, for it literally defies description. To bring it to pass, it must become, not only our prayer, but our program. Our lips and our lives must be at one here, and it does and will become reality exactly to the extent that we identify ourselves with it. It can come today in your life and mine if only we will have it so. The great philosopher, Immanuel Kant, once said that in order to create an ideal community we need only to act as if we already believed in it. This would be possible for each of us to do. May God help each one to do their part Amen.

LETTERS to the Editor

THINKS NAZI MOVE CUTS OFF BRITISH SUPPLIES

To the editor News-Review: If you were to write an editorial on the news you would probably first dwell upon the necessities of the latest move on the European chess board and you would say "it is shocking," but you would have to realize that Mrs. Post's rules on etiquette are rarely considered by warring nations.

Of course, you would appreciate that the Norwegians would have put forth much stronger opposition to the German invasion if their sovereignty had not previously been threatened by the British.

Then you would take a closer view at the map and notice that the German airplanes a much shorter route to the harbors of the British fleet and to all shipping in the North German sea.

Also, that instead of the British halting ore shipments to Germany, the situation is now reversed and England will have to do without the supplies from Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

Chamberlain is doing the talking but Hitler--darn him--is acting with usual German precision. Of course the end is not yet--the Brits will attack the invaders, but British airplanes included--neutrals--ourselves included--and the much of neutral good will. Of course, not as to us for we accept everything the British hand us as a compliment--even a kick in the pants. We were not quite so patient some 120 years ago.

Changes in Oregon Control Body Made

SALEM, Ore., April 12.—(AP)—The state board of control announced appointment today of Roy H. Mills to fill a newly created position of business supervisor of institutions in the board of control offices.

Mills will be subordinate to Ivan J. Fry, a democrat, who will continue as secretary to the board and state purchasing agent. There has been much speculation as to Fry's fate since the republican administration of Governor Sprague went into office. Fry has served since early in the Martin administration.

Governor Charles A. Sprague said duties of Mills would be to coordinate farming and business activities of the state institutions, and also coordinating agent between the board of control, the institutions and the budget department.

Services of E. M. Rogers will be discontinued in the board of control department, Governor Sprague said, but he will be found in a position elsewhere in state service. There will be no increase in the staff or aggregate payroll, the governor said.

Mills, the new appointee, has been in charge of liquidation of banks in the state banking department.

Action of the board of control was unanimous. Changes will take effect May 1.

SERIAL STORY K. O. CAVALIER

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD

CAST OF CHARACTERS VAL DOUGLAS—girl sports writer, shipped on a freighter to find excitement.

EDDIE CAVALIER—a prize fighter headed for the title, has a score to settle with Val.

CAPTAIN STEVE HANSEN—skipper of the Northern Belle. DUFFY KELSO—Cavalier's manager.

YESTERDAY: Playing checkers, Eddie tells Val why he took up fighting, talks of his plans for the future. The tension between them eases slightly and Val finds herself strangely disturbed as she gets to know Eddie better.

CHAPTER XII The weather became rougher as they neared north past Cape Hagar. It was a dull, leaden dawn that broke over the Pacific, and Val noticed through the porthole that it was impossible to penetrate the mist for more than 75 feet. Steve Hansen must have been on the bridge all night, she figured.

When she stepped outside her cabin the wind almost knocked her flat. Gratefully, she grabbed one of the lugs that had been strung along the deck for support, and every time the bow of the Northern Belle pitched deep into a cavernous trough of water, Val had to stop and hang on grimly.

She virtually had to fight her way up to the bridge, "Hi Steve," she greeted Hansen. "Nice day to fly a kite, what?"

"You ought to be below and stay there," he answered. "This is unusually dirty weather for this time of year and I don't like it, nohow. Noir, I don't."

Val looked up into the sky. "Looks like we're going to have a lot of water above and below us pretty soon."

"More'n might be good for us," he muttered. "The barometer has been dropping like a ton of lead. Tell you what you do, honey. Have Wong Leo send me up a pot and have Barney MacGregor see that everything's shipshape in the hold. Might anchor the thing and gear a little more, too. Can't afford to have any of that stuff break loose."

She bumped into Pop Grimes coming up the companionway, with Eddie's Kelso getting on?" she asked.

Pop grinned. "Stick as ever. He swears we've been half way around the world by now. I tell him it's only been four days, and he calls me a liar."

"We'll be in Prince Rupert tomorrow night. Maybe that'll cheer him up," she said. "And you can tell him I received a wire from our San Francisco office. They've persuaded the boxing commission to rescind their order on that $5000 bond. That ought to bring him right out of his bunk."

When Barney MacGregor took Mike Kelly, Eddie Cavalier and another man down in the hold she went along with them. She watched silently as they threw more ropes around the masting gear and secured everything tightly.

"Where do you go from here?" she asked Eddie after a few minutes.

"Back to the galley, of course. Wong says he can't release me until you give him the word."

"I can't do that," she replied somewhat impulsively. "He had for discipline and general morale. But I will give you a hand, though, C'mon."

She was opening a can of asparagus when the ship lurched heavily. It threw her off balance slightly, but just enough to strike her finger across a jagged edge of tin.

Eddie helped her bandage the wound. She winced as he bathed the cut with iodine.

"Anyways," she murmured. "This ought to be proof."

"Proof? Of what?"

She held up the finger. "Blood," she said succinctly. "Not ink. Remember?"

He nodded. "You sure do gain your points the hard way, though. And before I forget—thanks for getting your office to square that ferret bond for us. You didn't have to, you know."

"Forget it," she said.

But Eddie Cavalier found he couldn't forget it—completely. That he caught himself looking up at her when she was aware of it. There was something disturbing about the set of her mouth, curly head. He had seen a lot more beautiful women, but he couldn't recall one with as much spark.

She was the kind of girl, Eddie thought, who probably had a dozen or more guys cluttering up her doorstep. Guys with a lot of dough and a lot of spare time to spend it. Guys who played polo, maybe, and belonged to two or three country clubs. Guys who had a little blue in their blood, who work too hard among people like her, and with her looks it would be only natural for them to go for her, book, line and snicker.

He stared at the huge boat of apple sauce he was mixing. So what? So why should he be wasting a lot of thought on it? He lifted the big wooden spoon and whacked the apple sauce flatly.

"That's what it is," the whole thing was apple sauce. But he wished he could be a little more certain of his convictions.

The gale broke in all its fury just before dark. Steve Hansen remained at sea as long as he could, but something warm and bark a few orders.

"Get everything battened down and check the pumps—I don't want to ship any more water in that number three hold.

Mary Pickford To Return to Movies

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., April 12.—(AP)—The movies are getting so darned good, says Mary Pickford, that she wants to become a part of 'em again.

Some time this summer, perhaps, she will star in her first motion picture in seven years.

"I have quite definitely decided to do a picture as soon as I can complete the arrangements," she said in an interview.

"I can't tell you the name of the story, yet. But I will be co-starring with two, perhaps three, other women. There will be one male star."

Long out of the films, Mary has never stopped being a movie fan. She screens all the new pictures at her home, and seeing so many good ones, she says, has stirred in her the desire to don makeup once more.

Then too, she says, people have been after her. Her friends keep telling her the public would like to have her back.

Miss Pickford's last role was in "Secrets," released in 1933.

N. S. Rogers New Oregon Forester

SALEM, April 13.—Nelson S. Rogers, Salem, Friday was elected permanent state forester at a meeting of the state forestry board. He will receive $350 a month.

Rogers succeeds Carl E. Davis, Maribeth, who was elected acting state forester to succeed J. W. Ferguson, who resigned last November. Davis asked to be relieved of his duties so he might return to Coos county, where he has extensive logging interests.

Rogers has been employed by the state tax commission since 1932. He previously served as district fire warden at Verona and Medford, and at one time was assistant state forester.

Idahoan Favors Wheeler for Anti-War Attitude

WASHINGTON, April 12.—(AP)—Senator Clark (D, Idaho) put forward Senator Wheeler (D, Mont.) today as the only presidential candidate who he said had promised unreserved opposition to American involvement in the European war.

Both Wheeler and Clark voted against last year's neutrality bill lifting the arms embargo. Wheeler has said that he would not be a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination if Mr. Roosevelt runs, but has expressed the view that the chief executive would not seek a third term.

Secretary Jackson, a third term advocate, told reporters yesterday that if the president was re-elected, he would resign from the cabinet and say "thanks for the boggy ride."

The editor and publisher, W. K. Brownlow, announced the plant will continue in the job printing business.
