Every state, county and city official or board that handles public money should publish at regular intervals an accounting of it, showing where and how each dollar is spent. This is a fundamental principle of democratic government.

CANCER has become America's Public Enemy No. 2, being second only to heart disease as a cause of death.

Yet of the thousands who die each year of cancer, the large majority could have been cured if THEY HAD BEEN TREATED IN TIME!

This coming week, April 22-30, will mark Oregon's first annual participation in the nation-wide campaign to spread knowledge for the control of cancer.

Active units of the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, which are being organized in all parts of the state under the direction of Mrs. Frances Claggett Hooford, state commander for Oregon, will raise funds for an intensive educational campaign to fight this dread disease.

Governor Charles A. Sprague, in response to a proclamation issued by the president of the United States, calling attention to the importance of the work and urging the governors of all states to cooperate in setting aside a definite time during April for an active campaign for cancer control, has issued the following statement:

"While steady progress has been made in reduction of mortality from infectious diseases, there are certain other diseases where there has been little or no progress. Among these is cancer. The very word cancer starts a feeling of fear when it is used.

Nevertheless, medical science is combatting this dread disease and new methods are being utilized to achieve success in this field.

One essential to successful treatment is recognition of the disease in its earliest stages. This calls for wide-spread education of the people. Accordingly, the slogan of the Women's Field Army Division of American Society for the Control of Cancer, "Fight Cancer With Knowledge," is exceedingly pertinent.

The Oregon chapter of this women's division plans an enlistment from April 22 to April 30. The appeal of the organization challenges the interest and support of the people of this state.

Exploding a number of common beliefs, the society announces that cancer is not an incurable disease in its early stages; cancer is not catching, nor is it due to a germ; cancer is not inherited; injuries do not cause cancer and cancer is not all one disease, and therefore has no cure.

The organization also has recently pointed out five specific danger signals and symptoms that might mean the presence of cancer. These five danger signals are:

- 1. Any persistent lump or thickening, especially of the breast.
- 2. Any irregular bleeding or discharge from any part of the body.
- 3. Any sore that does not heal, particularly about the tongue, mouth or lips.
- 4. Persistent indigestion, especially when accompanied by alternate for or loss of weight.
- 5. Sudden changes in the form or rate of growth of a mole or wart.

AS to this mining operation, time will tell how effective it is. If the Germans are able to send enough troops and heavy guns to hold what they have seized in Nor-

CYNICAL, sidlight on modern

Germany insists she is not at war with Norway—that she has merely set herself up as Norway's defender against the wicked allies.

The Norwegians, however, egged on by their aged but spunky king, are resisting German protection, so in order to prevent bloodshed (the German story goes) the Germans must nip Norwegian resistance in the bud, slaughtering the resisting Norwegians if necessary.

That's the German story, and they stick to it.

Anglers Have Good Luck in North Umpqua Area

The North Umpqua river, in the vicinity of Idlewild park, is yielding good catches of fish for fly, bait and spinner users. It was reported today, C. W. McCanney made a limit catch of trout Saturday while fishing with a fly between Idlewild and Rock creek. Numerous jack salmon are being taken on spinner and bait. Two jack salmon, each weighing more than six pounds, were taken by Lyman Stiles, and a five-pounder was caught by M. C. Tuttle. Other limit catches also have been reported.

Bob Feller Holds White Sox Hitless

Cleveland Pitcher Tops Day's Mound Work; Veteran Grove Turns in Two-Hit Victory.

By JIMSON BAILEY

Big league baseball's first hitless day was as luscious as spring's first strawberry and the flavor will linger for days.

The no-hit spectacle of young Bob Feller, the two-hit efforts of old Lefty Grove and the uniformly fine flinging in every one of yesterday's eight games, lifted the 1940 season to a high place among the sport's opening days, even in the memory of old timers.

The world champion New York Yankees were beaten; the National league champion Cincinnati Reds won their first opening game since 1932. There were home runs and arguments with umpires and an extra-inning game and above all, some of the best all-around, free-style, no-holds-barred pitching since the majors ever gathered into a single day.

Feller's marvelous exploit overshadowed all the others. At 27, with him in control of the Cleveland Indians scalped the Chicago White Sox 1-0. He struck out eight.

It was the first no-hitter in the majors since Monte Pearson tamed the Tribe for the Yankees August 27, 1918.

While Feller was working carefully towards the first no-hit opening game in modern major league annals, Lefty Grove was tying the Washington Senators into bow-knots and didn't allow them a single until the eighth inning. Finally a teammate's error unthrew the 40-year-old southpaw sufficiently for him to allow two scratch singles, but he preserved the 1-0 victory for the Boston Red Sox.

The show was absorbing enough to keep President Roosevelt and 2,000 other fans at Washington encircled from start to finish.

The Athletics' 2-1 triumphing other pitching thriller with Charles (Red) Ruffing of the four-times victory over the Yankees was an world champions and LeVill (Chubby) Dean each giving six hits.

An error by Benny McCoy, Connie Mack's $45,000 prize free agent, emboldened New York to score a run without a hit in the third inning, but Bob Johnson hit a homer in the fourth to tie the score. Then in the tenth a lead by the bases with one out and Dean, one of baseball's leading pinch hitters when he isn't pitching, brought home the winning run with a long fly.

Higbe, Wyatt Shine

The outstanding hurling display in the National league came in the Phillies' 3-1 triumph over the New York Giants. Walter Higbe, suffering from a cold and an irritating eye ailment, held the Giants to three hits.

Brooklyn's Whitlaw Wyatt shut out the Boston Bees 5-0 on five hits.

The 24,342 fans who jammed Crosley field at Detroit had to watch their money take a 5-1 lashing by the St. Louis Browns because the seventh-hit hurling of George Gurnham, whom Detroit discarded at St. Louis it was the other way round, with the Cardinals getting crushed 6-1 under the 15-hit bombardment of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

SPECIAL SERVICES SET

Special services will be held at 7:30 p. m. Thursday and Friday of this week at the Pilgrim Holiness church, 477 South Jackson street, with Rev. R. D. Brown, home missionary from Tennessee, as the speaker. Rev. Mr. Brown spoke in Roseburg recently and his return has been requested by many who attended his former meeting. He has had much missionary experience in the mountain area of the southern states.

Portland Loses Its First Home Game

By the Associated Press

At Portland 12,818 fans turned out to inaugurate the Pacific Coast baseball league there yesterday, only to see their home team bow to San Francisco, 6 to 2, a result which sent the two into a tie for cellar position.

Oakland was top team in the league again today after dropping Sacramento to 1. San Diego dropped into second place with a loss to Hollywood.

For the second time this season, Oakland batters knocked Freitas, Sacramento pitcher, from the box. The Solon southpaw was relieved in the seventh by Van Slate, Clarence Buxton, Oakland hurler, allowed only four hits while his mates collected twelve.

In a see-saw game Hollywood nosed out San Diego 6 to 5. The lead changed hands six times before Hollywood clinched victory in the eighth inning with two runs.

The Seattle and Los Angeles teams were traveling.

Movies Depict Progress in Rail Freight Service

Motion pictures dealing with freight transportation on railroads were presented before the Roseburg Kiwanis club at its Tuesday luncheon meeting by A. B. Allen of the freight protective service of the Southern Pacific company.

The sound pictures particularly stressed the progress made in the delivery of shipments without damage or loss. It was stated that the shippers and railroad freight executives and employes are cooperating in reducing freight losses. It also was stated that better packing, handling and loading and improved switching and safeguards against theft have been contributing factors in the progress already made.

The Kiwanians also heard several musical numbers by members of the Roseburg high school choir, which announced its spring concert to be held at the school auditorium Friday night.

Ladies Aid to Meet

Serial Story K. O. CAVALIER

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD

CAST OF CHARACTERS

VAL DOUGLAS—glib sports writer, shipped on a freighter to find excitement.

EDDIE CAVALIER—a prize fighter headed for the title, has a score to settle with Val.

CAPTAIN STEVE HANSEN—skipper of the Northern Belle.

DUFFY KELSO—Cavalier's manager.

YESTERDAY: When Val is washed overboard, Eddie plunges in after her. He fights his way to the girl, supports her until a boat is put out to save them. Back on the ship, Eddie awakens, finds Duffy and Grimes anxiously watching him. The girl is all right, Grimes explains.

CHAPTER XV

"No," said Eddie. "No, I guess I wasn't."

Pop Grimes breathed a sigh of relief next morning when Eddie told him he was out of bed, grinned and inhaled deeply.

"Looks like the storm's over," he observed, nodding toward the porthole.

"Yeah! I'm sure glad," said Pop. "And I'm also plenty glad you didn't take cold or anything. Can't have you going into that ring next week on crutches."

"Where's Duffy?" Eddie asked, looking around. They were alone in the crew's quarters.

"It's almost noon. They wanted you to sleep it out and you sure did just that. You've been found in your car for a good 14 hours."

"Say, Pop—uh—why did you do it? What you're tryin' to say, she's still in bed, though—'an' she sent word she'd like to see you just as soon as you got up and had something to eat."

Eddie got into his clothes and went straight to her cabin. She lay propped up against a couple of pillows when he entered.

They looked at each other. His look was a little challenging, and perhaps a bit reproachful.

She motioned to a chair. "Please sit down," she said in a low voice.

"I'll stand."

"No," she said firmly. "Sit down. I can talk to you better that way."

"About what?"

He sat down, facing her.

"About what a dunce I was for slapping you last night?"

"Oh... that?"

"It's awfully inadequate to tell you I'm sorry, and it's just as inadequate to thank you for saving my life."

She extended her hand. "But won't you let me try?"

He took her hand in his. It was the first time he had ever touched her in more than a casual, accidental fashion. He wondered why he got the sudden electric shock that surged through him.

"Sure," he said easily. "I think I know how you feel. You don't have to eat crow."

She shook her head. "I'm not so sure. But Eddie—why did you do it? Last night, I mean. Steve Hansen says he doesn't know how anyone could live in that sea."

"We were lucky. The ship had almost stopped and we didn't drift far."

"You haven't answered my question."

He shrugged. "I don't know. Ask me again sometime when I've had a chance to think about it."

"I will," she promised.

"By the way, what did we run into?" he asked.

"Some tanker out of Seattle outside of a couple plates stove in nothing serious happened. We'll be able to make port in good shape tonight, which reminds me," she said thoughtfully.

"There's nothing to prevent you from jumping ship once we get to Prince Rupert. Unless we keep you as a virtual prisoner below decks," she added.

"What do you mean?"

"Just what I said. Unless you and Duffy and Pop get aboard you won't be able to keep an eye on you every second. What's to pre-

One way of keeping our feet on the ground

What a changed world it was for the first balloonist. He saw hills and valleys level out. He saw dark clouds serving a thrilling purpose when they reflected a gorgeous sunset. He got a new perspective.

Wise is the man who takes a broad view of today's events and keeps them always in true focus. He makes no mountain out of a rumor and sees no valley as deep as the despair of the pessimists. He is confident that he can take the hurdles as they come.

Such a man has the will to work—and the good judgment to relax when work is done. Moderate in all things, in his thoughts and in his activities, he is living—really living—with and for his family and among his friends. (He is unusual! If he doesn't usually serve Budweiser.) He is, indeed, the backbone of America.
