

News of 4-H CLUBS

The Coca Cola entertainers of Roseburg gave a delightful program at the Glendale school house Thursday evening. The music, magic, tap dancing, and vocal numbers were greatly enjoyed by all attending. May we take this opportunity to express our grateful appreciation to Mr. Britton and all of the entertainers for their co-operation.

The "Stitch and Chat" club members enjoyed strawberry ice cream and refrigerator cookies Thursday. Joyce Bartley had baked the cookies during the noon hour as a part of her other 4-H project. The girls demonstrated different kinds of stitches for roll call. During instructions Mrs. Hartley helped each girl with the article on which she was sewing. Plans were made for the exhibits to be displayed at the spring fair. After the instructions for next week's meeting were given, the girls played outdoor games.

Another test was given to the "Tree Helpers" over most of the work they have had so far. Each member took a tree and told its scientific name, how to positively identify it, how many years the cones take to mature, what its uses are, and any other interesting facts about it. Leo Dunning, Clinton Atterbury, and Jack Hunley were appointed for next week's program committee. Ice cream, furnished by the leader, Mr. Southwick, ended the evening.

"The Breakfast Chatters" of Benson school had grape juice and sandwiches for lunch at their meeting last week. They have learned what it takes to make a wholesome lunch as well as the many things that go for making good breakfasts. Three types of sandwiches were made, vegetable, and sweet. They were judged for evenness of buttering and filling. For roll call the group classified the different sandwiches as to value for fuel, regulatory, or body building qualities. A test on the table of measures and abbreviations and instruction for exhibiting will be a part of our meeting next week, which closes our project for this year.

The "New and So" 4-H club of Camas Valley went on a hike and picnic for the last meeting. We gathered some wild flowers. We dined on sandwiches, koolade, cookies, and powdered milk and waffles. Pictures were taken at all times of the hike. We went walking in Hatfield Creek when we reached the end of our trip.

Mrs. Sigel, club leader; Marilyn Baker, Jeanne Moore, Lois Tankersley, Rhoda Smith all participated. Geneva Huntley and Marie Sigel were honored guests.

Geneva Huntley helped in our play "Midnight in Goose Hollow Graveyard."
