Every state, county and city official or board that handles public money should publish at regular intervals an accounting of it, showing where and how each dollar is spent.

YESTERDAY a news story, on the front page of this newspaper, carried the information that Mr. and Mrs. Will J. Hayner have sold the Sutherland Sun.

When Will Hayner began publishing the Sutherland Sun some 30 years ago no community of the west had a prospect more fair than did Sutherland.

For some this dream did materialize—but the contentment and luxury of living to be had from owning a few acres of orchard land was generously over-advertised.

So the orchard tracts' boom collapsed—not only in Sutherland but in numerous other western valleys.

Two years ago fell the most devastating blow of all. The building and plant of the "Sun" were totally destroyed by fire.

Last year, however, Will Hayner could stand idly by no longer. A plant was purchased, a building rented and the Sutherland Sun once more appeared.

No ordinary troubles could stop the Hayners, but so the announcement reads, both are suffering ill health.

Multnomah Leads State in Voting Percentage

PORTLAND, May 20.—(AP)—Multnomah county led Oregon in turning out the vote for Friday's primary election.

In Multnomah county, 165,000 voters went to the polls for a turnout estimated at 69 per cent of those registered.

Union Control Act Argued at Salem

Constitutionality of Oregon's Law Attacked on Appeal From Lower Court O. K.

SALEM, May 21.—(AP)—The fate of Oregon's union control law, which the voters passed in November, 1939, by a margin of 197,771 to 148,460, was before the state supreme court today when five justices were to hear arguments in the attack by labor unions on the constitutionality of the law.

The law prohibits picketing or boycotting of employers unless more than half of their employees are engaged in a labor dispute, prohibits unions from collecting more dues than they actually need, prohibits anyone from interfering with the marketing of agricultural products.

The suit attacking the law was filed by the AFL, CIO and the railroad brotherhoods, with the American Civil Liberties union intervening on behalf of the unions.

The American Civil Liberties union, while asserting the law denies free speech and due process of law, said "the only legitimate purpose behind the enactment of this law was to prevent disorder and intimidation."

A decision in the case is expected in two or three weeks. The only judges not sitting in today's hearing were Justice Bailey, who is in Washington, D. C., and Justice Dean, who is ill.

Mother of Condemned Killer Burgunder Dies

SPOKANE, May 21.—(AP)—Private funeral services were held here Sunday for Mrs. Ruth Burgunder, 48, whose son, Robert Burgunder, Jr., faces the death penalty in Arizona for the slaying of two auto salesmen.

Mrs. Burgunder died last Friday but news of her death was not made public until last night.

The services were attended by her divorced husband, Robert Burgunder, Sr., of Seattle, former King county prosecutor.

Evangeline Philbrin Heads B. P. W. Clubs of Oregon

GRANTS PASS, May 21.—(AP)—Miss Evangeline Philbrin of Portland became president of the Oregon Business and Professional Women's club at the conclusion of the state convention here Saturday.

Miss Hilda Swenson of Salem was elected first vice-president; Miss Isabelle Brink, Klamath Falls, second vice-president; Mrs. Gladys Baldwin, Portland, recording secretary; Miss Eva Blackwell, Corvallis, treasurer.

Soliciting Permit Law Knocked Out by Court

WASHINGTON, May 20.—(AP)—The supreme court, in a unanimous opinion today, declared unconstitutional a Connecticut statute requiring a permit before money or other valuables may be solicited for "any alleged religious, charitable or philanthropic cause."

Allies Spending Millions for Planes, Munitions

LOS ANGELES, May 21.—(AP)—The Anglo-French purchasing commission plans to spend more than $400,000,000 in the Pacific coast area for airplanes and munitions, Sir Louis Beale, assistant commission chairman, said here.

He declared Great Britain and France are "buying every plane they can get their hands on," determined to put into action an air force of overwhelming numbers.

OUT OUR WAY

BANGS AND PANGS

Allies Have Most Men, Lag in Planes

WASHINGTON.—In 1914, the allies had the Entente powers outnumbered at the outset of war by about two to one, thanks to Russia, whereas today the allied advantage in numbers is only seven to six.

Oddly enough, the German air force was superior in 1914, just as it is today. Then it was 600 standardized planes, perhaps 10 Zeppelins, and 1,000 trained pilots.

In 1914, it was 2,550,000 German and Austro-Hungarian troops, at the outset, compared with the allied total of 7,453,000. On September 1, 1939, when the present war began, the Germans had 6,850,000 men in uniform against the allies' 7,715,000.

At the same time the Germans had an estimated air force of 238,000 men and 10,900 planes, with many more planes and men in reserve.

Three Persons Die In Two Shootings

YREKA, Calif., May 20.—(AP)—A fit of jealousy was blamed today by officers for the murder-suicide of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bedard during a week-end when three people were shot to death in Siskiyou county.

Francine Faye, 26-year-old chicken rancher of Quartz valley, was held on an open charge after Jimmy Johnson, 40, was shot to death at her place Saturday.

Assistant District Attorney Mark Brown said she told him she shot in self defense. She said she was taking a sun bath when Johnson, intoxicated and carrying a jug of liquor, appeared and attempted to attack her.

Sheriff Ben Richardson said Bedard, 32, shot his 28-year-old wife yesterday with a .22 rifle after a drinking party at the home of Bedard's sister, Mrs. Gus Roberts in Weed, and then turned the gun on himself.

First Lamb Shipment Made at Yoncalla

YONCALLA, May 21.—The first shipment of spring lambs from this community was made Saturday by Schusso and Castor. Mary Dunrose of Hayhurst brought in 18 lambs, which averaged 92 lbs. each, or a total of about $7.30 each.

SERIAL STORY

BLACKOUT

BY RUTH AYERS

CAST OF CHARACTERS MARY CARROLL—American

VINCENT GREGG—soldier of fortune, in love with Mary.

CARLA MARCHETTA—a mysterious London socialite.

DR. GILBERT LENOX—surgeon serving with British army.

YESTERDAY: At Lady Ponce-Townsend's exhibit, Mary hears two women discussing Carla Marchetta. They wonder why the suicide of the young count who once loved Carla has never been explained.

CHAPTER XVIII "You may go in Mrs. Lenox."

A startled, white nurse showed Mary into Dr. O'Connell's consulting room the next afternoon.

Mary had waited scarcely at all when the deep bass voice of Dr. O'Connell boomed:

"So this is Gilbert's wife. And how are you, my dear?"

Dr. O'Connell had a thick thatch of iron gray hair, a smile twinkled in eyes behind steel-bowed spectacles.

"Before I left the base hospital I was given this to deliver to you. He handed her a letter addressed in Gilbert's handwriting.

"Now let's have a look. Let's see about those facial nerves and see just how deep the damage has gone," Dr. O'Connell went on.

"He tapped her face with light fingers. As if to put her at ease he kept up a flow of conversation.

"Your husband is doing a mighty fine job in France. It's the young medical men who are doing the real surgery at the front."

"That's why I came back. Here in England I can serve my country better by being on hand when the cases that are invalided home arrive. Ordinarily, it takes months to build up a seriously wounded man to the point where plastic surgery would be any good at all."

"It makes me proud to hear about Gilbert."

"You have every reason to be proud of him, my dear. He tilted her face under the strong white examining light and studied the injured cheek critically.

"You don't know how much this means to me," she said at length.

"Save your thanks until afterwards," he said gruffly. "It will be time enough when we see if the operation is successful."

"You mean there's a doubt?"

"Well, there's always a doubt. We never know in advance what the results will be. We can only hope. Here's what I want you to do. You'll be admitted to the hospital today. We'll operate tomorrow morning, if you agree."

With the dispatch which characterized Dr. O'Connell, Mary found herself a patient in a private room in the same hospital she had left only a few weeks earlier.

She purposely waited until the gruelling routine of tests was over to read the letter from Gilbert. She had to be alone.

"My dear," she read, "Dr. O'Connell will bring you this message from me in person. I fear you have not received any of my letters. Service is uncertain and vastly slow in wartime."

"You will soon undergo this operation. When I trust you to Dr. O'Connell I'm leaving you in the best hands I know. You have my best wishes for all the luck in the world."

"This has to be brief because Dr. O'Connell is leaving immediately. But it carries sincere affection. "Gilbert."

Mary leaned back on her pillow, the letter tight in her hand. So he had written!

The words she had just read brought back the first time she had ever seen his red head towering above others in the air raid shelter Sunday, she would tell him all about it and, perhaps, by then she would have learned the mystery of Carla Marchetta's strange part in the events that had taken place since that night.

That Carla was engaged in a mysterious mission, she now slowly believed. Her own intuitive desire to uncover that activity had been met, at least partly, by the message from Dr. O'Connell. But she would endeavor to pry out the secret when she was well again.

The scratching of starched skirts grew louder as a nurse approached her bedside. The imperious British nurse was, for once, upset, Mary noted.

"Another shift has been sent," the nurse blurted out. "Nobody can make me believe these enemy subs are working blindly. There's a spy ring at work for certain."

Mary blanched, her eyes horrified.

"I beg your pardon, Mrs. Lenox. It was thoughtless of me. Dr. O'Connell wouldn't like it. It was only because I was so overwrought, I forgot myself. My brother was lost. . . . Now for the supper tray."

Early the next morning Mary found herself being lifted from her bed onto the blanket-covered hospital cart. This was the day!

This was the day that would either restore her as Mary Carroll or send her into a permanent blackout.

Inside the operating room, she looked at the glare. Without the vision bar, she was slipped onto the operating table. She heard the sound of water as Dr. O'Con-

Paralyzed "Boiler Kid" Soon to Become Father

CHICAGO, May 20.—(AP)—Fred Sulte Jr., the famed "boiler kid" infantile paralysis victim, announced today in "Back Talk," a mimeographed paper he sends to several hundred friends, that he and his wife, the former Teresa Larkin of Dayton, O., are expecting a child in September.

Fred's father, wealthy head of Chicago loan company, said "Back Talk" with its illuminating note was mailed from Miami Beach, Fla., Saturday and reached the addressees today.

"Back Talk" mentioned the birth of babies to several couples who are friends of the young Sultes and then, referring to "the two legged bird," said "expected by Teresa and Fred in September."

It added "and so you see God continues to shower us with all his choicest blessings, for which we are every grateful."
