POET'S CORNER

THE SEER OF POUGHKEEPSIE

By ALDEN HARRISS
Notes: Andrew Jackson Davis, who was born in 1826 and whose works, soon after his death, were published in thirty volumes, was known as "The Seer of Poughkeepsie."

He glimpsed a future age of vast delusion.
In which, like Valkyries of old, rushed military leaders here and there.

God's eternal laws, which governed and controlled
His mind and gave to him diviner sight.

Remaining Christian nations all unite
And against dark paganism, modern blight.

Then before him in his deep seer,
Vast changes of the future were unrolled.

All human thought with such unselfish love
That forever and forever from above
To earth descended peace of heaven.

Recruiting Aides Formulate Plans

Full Peace Strength Quota of 123 Men Sought for Local Unit of National Guard.

The committee appointed at the last meeting of the American Legion to assist in recruiting for the Roseburg company of national guard, met last night at the armory to formulate plans. The local unit has been below the authorized active strength since May 1st, and never has had a complete quota of 123 men in the inactive rolls. The men on the inactive list are not required to attend drill or field camp, but are available for service if and when the local unit is called into federal service. At that time they would become active members of the unit and would not have to go through the regular enlistment procedure. They would also be assured of going into federal service with an organized unit of men they know, whereas if they waited to volunteer after congress declares an emergency or until they are drafted they may be assigned to a unit with men from other states who are complete strangers.

Seek Full Quota of 123—The committee was told by Captain Robert L. Irving that the objective of the local unit is to maintain an active strength of 82 enlisted men, and inactive strength of 41 enlisted men. This would insure the unit having its peace strength quota of 123 men in event of a mobilization. It's permissible for the local unit to carry an inactive strength of 61 men which would assure mobilization at the regular war strength. However, this will not be attempted until the initial objective of 41 inactive enlistments is completed. Enlistments for the inactive list have the same requirements as the active list, namely that applicants must be over 18 years of age, without dependents and able to pass the regular physical examinations.

Prior Service Not Required—Prior military service is not a requirement. Members of the inactive national guard may transfer to the active list as vacancies occur, and will be given preference in filling vacancies. The American Legion committee believes, it was stated, that it is highly important at this time that the national guard be kept at the full authorized strength and that sufficient men be on the inactive rolls to fill the units to full war strength.

The following Legionnaires are among those appointed on the committee to carry out plans for recruiting the local unit: full strength: Hulbert Graham, chairman; Charles Stanton, F. L. Crittenden, H. C. Waddell, A. B. (Skip) Cacy, J. E. Johnson, George Traill, V. J. Micell, Ervin Riegel, Judge Carl Wimberly and Harris Ellsworth.

The next meeting of the committee will be held Monday, June 24, at 7:30 p. m. at the News-Review office. A representative from each civic organization and lodge interested in national defense and maintaining the local military unit is invited to be present.

Here on Business—Chris McCann, of Camas Valley, was a business visitor in this city yesterday.

What does its COLOR mean? The color of a diamond is one of the important qualities which determines its value.

Traditionally, a diamond is colorless—and called white, or more often blue-white. Tinges of yellow or brown decrease its worth. Most diamonds emit flashes of bluish "fire," but a diamond actually tinged with blue is a rarity.

We shall gladly show you how these slight differences in color affect the value of diamonds... and shall also explain the importance of cutting, the degree of perfection and carat weight in determining the value of the diamond you are seeking.
