Nazis Seek Trade In South America BUENOS AIRES , June 26.—(AP)—Germany has already opened a strong "trade offensive" in lower South America designed to bring nations away from close economic and military cooperation with the United States, a well-informed source said today. Agents of the Nazi government have established contact with Argentine officials, bringing full authority from the Reich to negotiate gigantic barter deals, this informant asserted. These agents are reported to be offering to purchase millions of pesos worth of Argentine foods and raw products, making payments through projects such as the electrification of Argentine state railways and the construction of various hydro-electric plants to offset the dwindling supplies of coal and oils in this country. German agents have even gone so far as to discuss the probability of available shipping space to move the purchases to Germany, it was said. WASHINGTON , June 26.—(AP)—The dispatch of a third cruiser on a friendly visit to South American ports was announced today by the navy. Acting Secretary Lewis Compton disclosed that the cruiser Phoenix, now in the Pacific, was proceeding on to its first port of call, Valparaiso, Chile. Two other cruisers are already in Atlantic coast South American ports, whence have come repeated reports of "fifth column" activity resulting from German victories in the European war. Relief Bill Signed by Roosevelt Bids Alie

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt signed into law today a $1,571,357 bill to finance relief for at least eight months beginning July 1.

The measure provides a basic $975,000 fund for the full 12 months of the fiscal year but contains a provision which would permit the president to draw on the fund if he believed it necessary.

Congress earmarked $2,000,000 of the total for national defense projects.

The bill contains new restrictions against aliens on relief rolls and retains the recent provision that at the end of 18 months, persons on relief must be dropped from the rolls.

It also contains a $500,000 fund to aid European war refugees and provides for machinery by which CCC enrollees may be trained in such noncombatant work as cooking, engineering and communications.

155-millimeter howitzers. Right now the army has one mechanized brigade, plus a few scattered units. Under the new plan it would have two full divisions of approximately 7500 men each.

The two cavalry divisions contemplated in the new plan would take few of the recruits; army already has one complete cavalry division, plus enough scattered cavalry units to form another. A cavalry division numbers between 8000 and 9000 men. Just incidentally, the army argues that there are plenty of spots in the U. S. where the terrain would stop a mechanized outfit, and where old-style horsemen are still invaluable.

Go for Specialization. It is under the heading of supplemental corps troops that the army would get some of its most modern fighting units.

An army corps is composed of two or more divisions; support is, under the setup outlined here, that there'd be five regular divisions in one and four in the other. Each corps will need about 12,500 special troops to make it a complete, self-contained fighting unit, and each corps' special troops would be made up as follows:

One motorized cavalry regiment, one field artillery brigade (two regiments of medium artillery and one of heavy), one anti-aircraft regiment, plus an anti-tank battalion, service and headquarters units, and so on.

Reserve Officers Needed. It stands to reason that if it plan goes through the army is going to have to call up some of its reserve officers, both for training the new recruits and for posts of command. Authority to do this will probably require special legislation.

Although three brand new infantry divisions will be formed, they won't be "rookie" divisions. Plan is to reshuffle the veterans now in the army so that each new unit would have a framework of old-timers.

Effective U. S. Standing Army Now Promised

By BRUCE CATTON
News-Review Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Expected senate approval of the house approved bill to boost the army to 400,000 men would soon give the United States a complete, up-to-date striking force of nine infantry divisions, two mechanized divisions, two cavalry divisions, and enough supplemental troops to form the whole into two complete army corps ready for immediate action.

This new enlargement of the army, which goes beyond increases previously voted, would give the nation a mobile field army within its continental borders of close to 125,000 men.

Plans for a recruiting campaign have been perfected. The drive can get under way as soon as congressional action is complete.

Horse Cavalry Still Kept. Uncle Sam's field army today has five infantry divisions, plus a skeletonized sixth division; the new plan would fill in all the gaps and add three brand new divisions. Peacetime strength of these "streamlined" divisions is 8500 men, organized into three infantry regiments, two artillery regiments, and various signal, quartermaster, engineer, and headquarters units.

Fire-power can be judged by the weapons carried. Each of these divisions would be equipped with 318 rifles, 18 anti-tank guns, 276 machine guns, 9 mortars, 26 75-millimeter field pieces, and 16
