Every state, county and city official or board that handles public money should publish at regular intervals an accounting of it showing where and how each dollar is spent.

The bombing airplane has done a lot of things to modern life. It has made women and little children the victims of its blind fury in a direct way in which war never claimed them before.

It has destroyed geography. It has made defensive fortified lines obsolete. It has narrowed oceans, wiped our border lines, imperiled the free lines of the sea.

While social scientists and reform dreamers tossed in the air their tubbles of planning, the bomber was remarking the world.

Let us see what has been going on in Chungking.

Chungking is the new capital of China. A vast incognito nation was driven from its old capitals and forced under the pressure of a terrible three-year war to remake itself literally under fire.

Back drew the Chinese millions as city after city fell. A new capital city, not out of range of the Japanese bombers, but at least at more difficult range, was necessary.

The Chinese, ingenious to a high degree, began to build. A vast underground labyrinth was cut out of the solid rock on which Chungking sat.

Dugouts for 300,000 people have been gradually tunneled out. Newspaper plants, radio stations, even a motion picture studio, have been installed far underground.

That is a natural development from the lessons of Europe. But China has had a longer period to consider, and a severer lesson. So in building the new city of Chungking, a plan is being followed. The city is not being built in a single cluster, but in some to widely separated units.

Not all the government buildings and facilities will be together, easy targets for even indiscriminate bombing.

Instead, one group is here, another will be at quite a distance, all connected with good roads and transportation, and all built especially for lowest visibility from the air.

Many are off the main and known roads, and all have dugouts.

One can only admire the ingenuity of the Chinese. They have learned in a hard school, but they have learned.

The highly-concentrated groups in which British and French industrial plants grew up, were a handicap to them.

The United States, with its vast area, has a chance to avoid this difficulty. New plants of strategic value should be built (and to some extent they are) in diverse areas and sections of the country.

In this way, no sudden raid can paralyze all industrial resistance. City and regional planners today have a new element to consider in guiding the development of our physical surroundings. It is that nullifier of plans, the bomber.

The English are planning a TWO-YEAR defensive war, to be followed by a counter-offensive against Germany in 1942.

"We would rather see London laid in ruins and ashes than EN-SLAVED," he asserts.

THAT is a bold statement of the traditionally stubborn British attitude. Hitler will do well to take it into consideration in his plans for the future.

CHURCHILL says: "Hitler has not yet been withstood by a great nation with a will power the equal of his own." He adds: "Not in the past war, or EVER BEFORE, has Britain had a comparable army to that now in the field and ready to strike an invader." As to the German attempt to starve Britain out, he says: "English food reserves are higher than they have ever been before."

DON'T discount the military might of Hitler's Germany. It has been too well proved to make that safe. But don't jump to the conclusion that the British are licked. They aren't—YET.

ODDITIES

Accommodating Grocer PORTLAND, Ore.—Grocer Harold Williams reported that he felt very obnoxious when a slender youth asked for a paper bag last night. "What size?" Williams asked. "Any size—but put your dough in it!" the bandit replied, producing a revolver. Williams did—$29.

Busy Firemen OSHKOSH, Wis.—With a little cooperation, the Oshkosh fire department might have saved Henry Bertholt's barn. Angered by the blaze, thousands of bees attacked the entire fire department. Unprepared for the onslaught, the firemen withdrew and the barn burned.

Guard Unit Ready For Quick Action

Less Than 12 Hours Needed By Roseburg Company to Be Prepared to Entrain.

The Roseburg company of the Oregon national guard, although not scheduled to go into summer training until Aug. 1, is prepared to move quickly in the event of an emergency call, it was reported today. Some of the officers, it is stated, expect that the national guard will be given a test mobilization, and may receive a sudden summons in an effort to determine how quickly the defensive organization could respond to an emergency.

Officers of the local company report that the unit could be fully mobilized and ready to entrain in less than 12 hours, despite the fact that members are located in all parts of the county. Plans for notifying members to report at the armory have been worked out, while all of the company's equipment, together with the individual supplies and equipment for each man, are assembled and can be prepared for loading within a few minutes.

The guard unit is now at the full authorized strength, but enlistments still are being accepted for inactive status. It also is probable that some of the members will be discharged because of dependents in the event the national guard is ordered into active service or is placed on indefinite training. For this reason applications are being accepted from young men desiring to enlist in the active unit in the event vacancies occur.

The company expects to go to Fort Lewis, Aug. 1, unless orders are received advancing the date, and will have at least two weeks of intensive training, with a possibility that the training period may be indefinitely extended.

Canada Foregoes Visa Requirement

Citizens of the United States are not required to have passports or visas when traveling back and forth between Canada and the United States, it is reported in a bulletin issued by the immigration and naturalization service of the U. S. department of justice. Claims to United States citizenship may, however, be questioned both by the Canadian and the United States Immigration Officers; hence, it is advisable to carry some evidence of citizenship.

"You may be able to satisfy the officials without documentary proof but documents to support your claim will simplify matters. In the case of a native-born citizen of the United States, a birth certificate is valuable evidence. Naturalized citizens should by all means carry their citizenship papers with them. If you are a registered voter, a certificate to that effect from the official in charge of the registration records, while not conclusive evidence of citizenship, may nevertheless be helpful," the bulletin states.

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—(AP)—An inventor, charging that a Jones family movie character portrayed him as "ridiculous, foolish, illiterate, uneducated, silly, absurd, impecunious and incompetent," sued the actor and the 20th Century Film company for $150,000 damages yesterday.

Leo Katz, who says he is the inventor of the "hot can," a device which automatically cooks food when it is opened, declares that Forester Harvey in playing the role of the inventor of a similar cooking can ridiculed him.

In the film, "On Their Own," Harvey was Professor Percival Pinny, who became a terrible nuisance to the Joneses with his efforts to invent a can that would hold food and heat it.

Katz alleged that a wealthy man after seeing the movie dropped a plan to invest in the can invention.

Here Wednesday—James P. Donahue, fire insurance investigator of Portland, was a business visitor in this city Wednesday.
