 Every state, county and city official or board that handles public money should publish at regular intervals an accounting of it, showing where and how each dollar is spent. This is a fundamental principle of democratic government.

shells which, when they explode, drop a small parachute that holds the wires temporarily in the air where they will foul the motors and wings of attacking planes.

Brief notice of such a device was given in American newspapers several months ago. It sounds as if the British may be trying it out.

(GERMAN reports today refer to it sneeringly as nothing more than a silly ploy. The Germans, of course, fear the effect of reports of such a weapon on the morale of their flyers.)

THERE'S a hen on again in the Balkans.

Two Greek destroyers are bombed by "unknown" airplanes. Officers of the Greek ships watched the planes through glasses and are said to have reported flatly to the Greek admiralty that they were Italian.)

The Turkish press says an Italian attack on Greece will bring Turkey into the war.

VIRGINIO GAYDA, the Italian editor who is supposed to speak for Mussolini, says the sinking of the Greek cruiser Helle on Thursday is a "British maneuver aimed at rupturing relations between Italy and Greece."

If you have been able to believe a lot of the propaganda tommyrot peddled since the war began, there is no reason why you shouldn't try to believe this.

HIGH TIDE

Chapter 37
 Lenore's Tea

Derek strode into the house, shut himself in the library, and rang up Jan's maid. To a moment she met Derek's mother, a brittle, nervously pretty woman with dyed red hair, whose face looked as if all human expression had been lifted out of it by plastic surgery. But she, or her name, meant nothing to the young man. Lenore, who had been sitting at the table, looked up at him with a smile. "You look like a Siamese cat!"

Lenore grasped Jan's arm firmly and piloted her into an ivory and lavender bedroom. She closed the door.

"I'll never forgive you for this abuse of my generosity," she cried. "I only asked you here because of Ricky! He's absurdly determined to repay you for something or other. He feels sorry for you because you're so young and so poor and so obviously and idiotically in love with him. Or is it his money?"

Jan gasped. Never in her life had she so wanted to commit grave bodily harm. Her hand ached to slap that furious, supercilious look off Lenore's face.

"I don't love him!" she snapped, tears of rage fast closing her throat. "And I don't need anybody to be sorry for me! Lenore's eyes were more mine than yours. He's salvage—my salvage—and I could claim him if I wanted to!"

Derek stepped into the room. "They told me I'd find you here, Lenore!" His mouth dropped open. "Jan," he ejaculated in what she imagined to be a heavenly name as you do in that outfit!"

"I've been slumming!" she shouted.

Lenore ran to Derek. "She's quite mad, Ricky. She says she could claim you as salvage! She says you belong to her!"

He scowled terrifyingly. "Oh, she does, eh? Well, I've a few things to tell her!" He started for Jan, who, thoroughly frightened by her own behavior, sprang past him and ran out of the apartment to the elevator.

"Take me down quickly," she ordered, the grinning colored operator.

Derek tried to catch her before the door closed, but could not. He whirled and tore madly down eight flights of steps to the lobby. She was gone. Suddenly he threw back his head and roared with laughter. The clerk and the door man stared at him in trepidation as he went out stumbling. "Salvage, eh? I'm hers, all right!"

Nevertheless, it soon became evident she had no intention of claiming him. He could not find her. He took to hanging about the hospital, hoping for sight of her, unaware that she saw him and deliberately avoided him, slipping out another entrance.

Looking a royal armorer, Jan, through corridors when his pursuit grew too hot. He argued and threatened and stormed at doctors and nurses to no avail. They would not permit Lance any visitors and they would not catch Jan and lock her up for him.

And then one day when he inquired if Lance was well enough yet to see him he was told that Mr. Merriner and his sister had returned to the coast.

Derek stared blankly at the head nurse.

"It's quite true," the nurse insisted in the firm, reasonable tone one employs on children and inmates. "Doctor Murray went with them, having finished his work here. Mr. Merriner was unhappy, and eager to return home, so Doctor had him moved by stretcher. Their train left early this morning. I believe."
