POET'S CORNER

A WORD TO HITLER The ships we sent to England May be old and obsolete, But they'll add a lot of power To the mighty British fleet. Do not take them lightly. They are armed both fore and aft. With cannon and torpedoes— A sturdy fighting craft. Manned with British sailors, Armed with Yankee guns, They'll prove a deadly menace To you and all your Huns. We have read about your blitzkrieg— How you trampled on the weak; But there'll be a different story When their guns begin to speak. Your planes may do some damage On land or in the air; But you'll never cross the channel While the Yankee boats are there. For our navy's proud tradition, If you'll read your history right, Is when you think they're beaten They have just begun to fight. So call back your planes and armies; Get back while you can! You'll never whip the British On the boats from Uncle Sam. R. A. Redell, 522 South Pine street, Roseburg, Ore.
