"No 3rd Term Day" Fixed by Wilkie

Wednesday, October 23, has been designated by Wendell Wilkie, republican candidate for the presidency, as "No Third-Term Day."

Republican organizations throughout the state are planning rallies, broadcasts and meetings on that date.

Kern Crandall, chairman of the republican state central committee, in writing to county leaders outlined some of the salient points expressed in state constitutions designed to prevent over-ambitious men and their political machines to perpetuate themselves in office.

"No less than 24 states of the union have written into their constitutions, in one form or another, prohibitions against governors and other officials holding office indefinitely," he wrote.

In citing examples, Crandall drew attention to the fact that as a general rule the constitutions do not absolutely prohibit a man from running for a second or third term, but he can run again only after he has been out of office from two to four years. Thus should he run again he runs as an individual and does not have the prestige, power and plunger of an incumbent to reelect himself.

I SEE A BLUE AND WHITE LABEL IN YOUR LIFE

predicts Elsie, the Borden Cow

"Madam is fortunate!"

"I can see her pouring evaporated milk from a Borden-label can— I see hubby smile at its flavor in coffee—and baby coo with delight over his bottle of it— "I see tehy— because Borden-label milk is rich, uniform, digestible and irradiated with sunshine Vitamin D. Cross your grocer's palm with pennies in fair exchange for several cans of Borden's Evaporated Milk with the familiar blue and white label."
