Turkeys Freeze to Death

Repair crews worked to restore communication facilities in Nebraska and neighboring states. The Nebraska state agricultural officials reported that one-fourth of the turkey crop was believed lost. Thousands of the birds froze to death while huddled together for protection against the biting winds. Thousands of Iowa turkeys met a similar fate.

Strong winds churned the Great Lakes, sending ships scurrying for shelter and driving a carrier around near Ludington, Mich. Ladington was without telephone service for several hours and many power lines were down. The Port Huron lights were blown far from its anchorage in Lake Erie.

Chicago Lashed

There were eight storm deaths in Illinois, which suffered extensive property damage in both urban and rural sections. An electric sign at Randolph street and the outer drive in Chicago was blown down although built to resist a wind of 100 miles. The steel sign was 16 stories high and valued by its owners at $150,000.

Windows of many fashionable shops along Michigan avenue in Chicago were shattered. The three-ton belfry tower of the Olivet Baptist church crashed to the ground as did a seven-foot statue of Christ from atop the five-story Columbus hospital. Cornices were hurled to the ground in many sections of the city.
