POET'S CORNER

THE MAN ON THE STREET

We listen to him daily,
The man upon the street,
To hear his little story,
And find out who he'll meet.

First he gives us prices
Of specials for the day,
And bids us stop at Teenie's
If we happen by that way.

Next he greets a passer-by—
"Say, mister how-de-do,
Won't you stop here just a moment,
I want to talk to you.

My name is Marshall Pennington;
I'd like to have you meet;
Those listening to our radios,
And the man upon the street.

This instrument is a microphone;
Pray tell us what's your name;
Tell us how you got here;
Also why you came.

Are you a stranger 'mongest us?
Have you come here just of late?
Are you a Roseburg resident,
And a native of the state?

There's a thousand people listening in—
Perhaps some one you know,
If not let's get acquainted
Over the radio."

So it may be Jones of Johnson,
Smith or Eisenstein,
Burkowitz or Murphy,
Pike or Valentine.

Who tell their little story,
Deftly coached by him,
And it's news and entertainment
To us who listen in.

Or perhaps a lonely maiden
Steps to the microphone,
So we listen for her address,
And the number of her phone.

But if she's there to tell us
Of a party, dance or fair,
We make a memorandum,
And promise we'll be there.

There's always something different;
Always something new,
So listen in tomorrow—
There may be news for you.

—R. A. Redell,
532 S. Pine street.
