

Prize Winner Receives Admiration

Oregon-Grown Turkeys Tops In All Shows

Superior Quality Brings First Prizes; List of Live Bird Exhibitors at Oakland's Annual Display Announced.

Many persons, who have visited the Northwest Turkey show each year, have been heard to comment on the fact that fewer growers are competing from Washington, California, Idaho and states other than Oregon than in earlier years of the show. This is explained by E. G. Young, manager, who points to the fact that Oregon birds entered in poultry shows in other states have consistently won all top prizes.

In an eastern turkey show two years ago, where Oregon birds were entered, the judges gave the first five prizes to the western entry and then held that the other entries were so much inferior that they skipped the sixth place and rated the remaining birds from seventh place on down.

"We still have many entries from California and Washington where growers are producing broad breasted turkeys," Mr. Young explained, but each year finds competition becoming keener and keener and many out-of-state turkey raisers realize that it is hopeless to try to win prizes against the Oregon birds."

The exhibitors of live birds at this year's show number 91, while 76 growers have birds in the dressed show. The exhibitors and their addresses are as follows:
