

British Aid Plan So Involved Its Fees Are Helped

By FRANK CATTON
New York Times Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—First big job of the new congress will be a little problem in applied economics: how far can you go in the way of buying a warring neighbor his guns and ammunition without buying yourself a piece of his war?

Aid for Britain will be the No. 1 topic on the program—with bells on. And a scrap just as determined (though probably not as long) as that turned on when the president got the arms embargo repealed in 1939 is certain to result.

It's likely to take several queer turnings, that scrap.

Just what sort of aid-Britain legislation the administration is going to hand congress isn't clear yet. It's likely to be involved, because the president's idea is involved. And while the president seems to have the votes to get pretty much what he wants, the very fact that the new law is going to have to be so involved will give the isolationists several chances to take a good tooth-hold and wrestle it around.

Without Dollar Sign

You can figure that out for yourself. Here's a plan that would have the U. S. government taking over the production of guns, planes, ships and so on for Great Britain. The big idea is to get the stuff built without, as the president puts it, worrying about a lot of silly dollar signs. Having built it, you get it overseas fast, and you call it a loan, or a lease, or something similar, the general idea being that after the whole fuss is over you can sit down and figure out who gets paid for how much, and with what.

Anything like that is naturally going to give sarcastic opponents of which the administration has a large collection in this congress a fine chance to inquire how you're going to cash in when somebody sends a few thousand well-used bombs back to you.

Canine "Life Guard" Takes a Hand

A handy pooch to have around where folks swim is King Serus III, a 150-pound Newfoundland dog, belonging to Kitty Davis, Miami Beach nightclub operator. Serus, trained as a life-saver, is pictured above, demonstrating his skill with his mistress. Although he can pull in a distressed swimmer by seizing a hand in his mouth, his grip is so gentle his teeth don't leave a scratch.

Roosevelt Placed Third On List of U. S. Speakers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was rated today as the third best American public speaker in the past century. Abraham Lincoln ranked fourth on the list prepared by Prof. K. G. Hance, of the University of Michigan, an authority on oratory and one of the speakers at the convention here of the National Association of Teachers of Speech.

Dr. Hance gave top honors to Henry Ward Beecher, writer, orator and clergyman.

Second place went to William Jennings Bryan.

The president was given third place, the professor said, "despite the fact ghost writers probably entered into the preparation of certain speeches."
