Second Battle of Conference Bill Nicely Played; Ashland To Be Opponent Tomorrow.

The Roseburg high school Indians had two down and one to go today as they made ready to meet the Ashland Grizzlies here Tuesday night in the third conference basketball game of the season. The Indians Saturday night trounced Grants Pass 28 to 19 to follow up their 52-to-35 win Friday night over Medford. The game Tuesday night against Ashland will complete the first lap in the southern Oregon district's round robin. A victory by the Indians would give Roseburg undisputed first place in district standings. The four teams of the district, Grants Pass, Medford, Ashland and Roseburg, play a round robin in which each team meets each of the other district teams four times during the season. Roseburg meets Ashland here Tuesday night, then plays at Ashland and Grants Pass Friday and Saturday.

The Indians found Grants Pass a tough opponent in the game here last Saturday, but a third period rally by the Indians tucked the game into the win column. Game Nicely Played Both teams played a beautiful defensive game, particularly during the first half, as evidenced by the half-time low score of 15 to 7 in Roseburg's favor. Neither team scored until midway in the first period and every point during the entire first half was hard-earned.

The defensive work of both teams was cleverly executed with Finlay and Wiard turning in a fine record of floor work for the Indians, while Gray, Davis and Meyer were a stone wall for the Cavemen.

In the third period the Indians came back to speed up the attack taking advantage of the height of Denton. Roseburg's 6, 7 center, to work the ball into the basket by set plays. The Indians also did a nice job in following up their shots and picked several cripples to add to the score.

In the last period the Roseburg players began showing the effect of two hard games in a row and the Cavemen, sensing the let-down, staged a desperate rally which Meyer led with long-range howitzer shots to pick up six points in quick succession.

The Indians, however, with a lead of 24 to 10 going into the last period, were able to coast on defensive play until the last few minutes, when Coach Watts sent in a full team of substitutes.

RAF Raids Nazi Army Trenches, Italian Port

Engineers transferred from other sections of the city and civilian workers continued to dig into the mass of tangled boulders, slabs of masonry and wrecked steel in search of other possible victims.

RAF Blows Detailed
With bombs dropping from only a few hundred feet and machine-guns firing "almost at ground level," the air ministry described heavy damage at Porto Marghera, including the destruction of two large buildings. "Anti-aircraft defenses first were silenced by machine-gun fire from a few hundred feet," its communique said. "Then a heavy bomb was released from very low level and blew up one of the large refinery buildings. "More bombs set oil storage tanks on fire."

Several fires also were caused at Regensburg, it said, and at Ostend "a large explosion followed by fire was observed." From these night attacks, the communique said, one British plane failed to return.

An admission by the Germans that six of their planes failed to return from Friday night's raid on Britain (the British claimed a bag of only two) brought from the press association's air correspondent the assertion that this may mean "progress is being made in the search for a thoroughly convincing answer to the night bomber."

The first detailed disclosure that the Germans had started building a defensive line of fortifications along the English channel was brought to the United States by William McGuffin, member of the Associated Press staff in London, who returned recently.

Some of the powerful French guns seized in the Maginot line already have been moved up to the coast, McGuffin said reports in British military circles disclosed.

British Libyan forces still were hauling guns from the Bardia area to surround Tobruk, 70 miles away, and putting them in action against outlying Italian defense points.

The important fascist outpost at Giarub oasis, 150 miles south of Bardia, was said to have been cut off by the British.

able to bring additional animals up through snow clogged passes. Delayed dispatches from an Associated Press correspondent with Greek mountain troops on the central Albanian front said green-clad bodies of Italian deserters, sprawled on every mountainside over which the Greeks advanced, gave evidence that the fascist losses must have been in the thousands.

ITALY CHANGES GENERALS IN ALBANIAN CAMPAIGN

ROME, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Another shake-up in the fascist high command put the chief of staff of Italy's army, Gen. Ugo Cavallero, in command of Italian forces in Albania today as the ninth bomb or torpedo hit on British warships in four days was accredited officially to the new German-Italian offensive in the Mediterranean.

Italian authorities insisted that the situation behind the lines in Albania was satisfactory and an official announcement said that Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, who had been in command since Nov. 10, "has been relieved because of his health."

Today's high command communique said an Italian plane had torpedoed a "big enemy warship" in the western Mediterranean. Thus, since Friday, nine British ships have been listed as bombed or torpedoed by the Italian naval forces and combined German-Italian air units. At least one of them, a cruiser, was declared to have been left in sinking condition.

The high command, meanwhile, identified one of the British ships said to have been struck by a torpedo last Friday in the Strait of Sicily as a battleship of the Malaya (31,000-ton) class.

The daily war bulletin said British planes bombed Turin, Venice and Catania last night, killing one person at Venice and injuring several others. "Some damage" was said to have been caused.

Two British planes were reported shot down over Catania and Venice. Six men of one crew were said to have been taken prisoner.

Avoid New Taxes, Don't Upset Budget, Legislature Urged by Gov. Sprague

solely upon motor transportation. But at the same time, he recommended that motor carriers be required to pay taxes to support general government, either by levying new taxes or by diverting part of their present taxes to the general fund. The taxes they now pay are used for building and maintaining roads. The governor also recommended stricter regulation of log-hauling.

Other Recommendations
Appointment of an administrator for the workmen's compensation law is designed to bring about more efficient management, he said. The governor also approved the proposal to abolish jury trials in appeals from awards by the industrial accident commission.

The school tax equalization proposal, defeated last session, would equalize school taxes within counties. The net effect would be that richer districts would help support the poorer districts.

Governor Sprague said the building program for state institutions, to cost $300,000 a year for six years, would relieve overcrowding, particularly at the state hospital. He also asked that institution employes be given an eight-hour working day.

The governor asked the legislature to try out the experience rating system under the unemployment compensation law. This proposal, opposed by labor groups, provides that employers who have dismissed few employees shall pay smaller payroll taxes, while higher taxes would be assessed against employers who dismissed many employees.

Other recommendations include: Enact a constitutional amendment to restore voting rights to penitentiary inmates who have served their sentences, give the governor authority to organize a state guard to replace the national guard which now is in federal service, give the game commission full power to fix seasons and bag limits, permit people's utility districts to sell their bonds to the federal government by negotiation, adopt a pension system for employes of the state, counties, cities and districts.

Planning Need Cited
Governor Sprague criticized the federal government for its "continued invasion of the powers of the state," but he said the states may justify their existence if they "do a superior job of legislation and administration."

He warned that Oregon must plan ahead to bring about permanent prosperity, asserting that the present prosperous times are not stable because they are due to "liberal federal expenditures for rearmament and to the rapid consumption of exhaustible resources."

Also today, the supreme court agreed to review a labor board contention that it could compel a company to hire men and give them back pay if the board believed employment had been denied because of union membership and activity.

tion was very favorable." Willkie said last night that he was for the administration's lend-lease proposal "with modifications." In a statement issued in New York he also announced that he would go to England soon to make a personal study of needs and conditions there.

At the state department today, Secretary Hull described the 1940 republican presidential candidate as an outstanding figure and leader of public thought in this country and as such entitled to visit the British isles as a private citizen.

Landon Comments
Willkie's statement brought a comment from Alf M. Landon in Topeka, Kans., that "if Mr. Willkie had revealed that to be his position before the republican national convention he would not have been nominated."

Willkie and President Roosevelt hold essentially the same position, Landon asserted, adding, "that is, we must get into the war if necessary to help England win."

Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the senate foreign relations committee, who said he "unqualifiedly" approved the measure's objectives, predicted Mr. Roosevelt would favor an amendment specifying that foreign beneficiaries provide "reasonable security" in the form of goods needed by the United States such as tin and rubber.

Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), who is organizing an opposition bloc in the senate, said during a radio forum last night that approval of the bill "means war—open and complete warfare."

Senator Lee (D., Okla.), taking the other side, asserted: "America has only one chance to escape total war and that chance is England. England is the only barrier between America and a baptism of blood."

jury to the United States or advantage to a foreign nation." Gorin was sentenced to six years imprisonment by the southern California federal district court. Salich, former Berkeley

Cal., policeman, was sentenced to four years. Their conviction was upheld by the ninth federal circuit court.

To Review Labor Case
The federal circuit court at New York held that the men involved in the labor board case had not been employed and hence the board's order was invalid.

The controversy grew out of a strike at a Bisbee, Ariz., copper mine owned by the Phelps-Dodge corporation of New York.

Oregon Hoopsters Lose 2nd in Row To Cougar Quintet

(By the Associated Press)

The University of Washington, with two straight victories behind it, was in what might be termed a super-strategic position in the northern division of the Pacific coast conference basketball race this week.

As of today, Washington and Oregon State—the latter defending champion—are tied for leadership of the division with perfect records.

Washington, however, plays only two Kings-X games with Montana this week; while Oregon State faces its inter-mural enemy, the University of Oregon, in a game that can't be anything but a Donnybrook, no matter who wins. Should O.S.C. lose Washington will have the leadership all to itself next Sunday; and even if the Beavers win, Washington's record will still be perfect in so far as the division is concerned.

The only other game on the week's program pits Washington State, with two wins and two losses on its record, against Idaho at Pullman.

Washington made it two in a row over Idaho Saturday night, 39 to 37. Idaho led most of the first half, dropped back in the second half, came up strong at the finish to tie the score in the last three seconds of play—only to lose in the five minute overtime as Washington got three points to one for the Vandals.

Washington State had an easier time with Oregon, winning 55-40, at Eugene. It was Oregon's second straight loss to the Cougars. W.S.C. was freed from the outset and never threatened. The half-time score was 28-17.

later was elected calendar clerk with 17 votes over Pearl Shafer of Lane county.

Roy Corey, Salem, was elected senate doorkeeper over Walter McPherson, also of Salem.

While McAllister obtained 22 of the 38 house republican votes, he got only five of the 22 democratic ballots. After the 33-to-27 vote for Farrell was announced at the caucus, McAllister was given an ovation by the membership when he moved to make the vote unanimous for Farrell. McAllister then appealed to all members to unite behind Farrell so that the session might be "harmonious." He also asked the members to forget the bitterness engendered by the speakership battle.

At the request of President-elect Dean Walker of the senate, the senators agreed to reduce the number of standing committees from 37 to 30, and cut the membership of the larger committees.

Members of both houses were optimistic that the session would end within 50 days. It appeared likely the session would be considerably shorter than the 1939 record session of 66 days, since all administration bills are prepared and there aren't many controversial issues.

Chief Justice Kelly of the Oregon supreme court swore in the 60 house members and the 30 senators. The number included 24 new representatives and four new senators.
