BEFORE joining in the crucifixion of Lindbergh that will follow this latest expression of his views remember that as long as three years ago he told both Britain and America in complete and accurate detail exactly what Germany was doing in the way of preparation for air warfare on a scale never before imagined. He was hooted at for his pains.

Why work? Because there is something in man that makes him not content to live like the beasts of the field. Man wants more than that, and seeing the broad world and all its opportunities for producing the things he wants, he works, and produces them. Over thousands of years, this work becomes systematized to produce more and better things. That organization of work we call an economic system.

TOBRUK is captured, along with 24,000 Italian prisoners including four generals and an admiral. The British say their casualties in the attack were less than 500, indicating that they were intelligently led.

FROM Cairo comes an interesting comment on the situation thus created, British circles there pointing out that: Nothing short of German intervention on a major scale can now save the rest of Italian Libya from falling to the British.

J. J. Thornton Dies At Eugene; Pioneer Of Douglas County

J. J. Thornton, 89, pioneer resident of Douglas County, died late Friday at Eugene, where he had made his home for the past 18 years. Born in Missouri, he came with his parents to Oregon in 1865 and for the greater part of his life was engaged in farming at Oak creek, east of Roseburg. He moved to Eugene 18 years ago, at which time a daughter was attending University of Oregon, and has since made his home in that city. His wife died three years ago and is buried in the Oak Creek cemetery.

Surviving are five sons and daughters, Mrs. Martha Boyd, Eugene; Mrs. Ethel Koufas, Multnomah, Ore.; Mrs. Gracia Wells, Everett, Wash.; William Thornton, Concord, Calif.; Clarence Thornton, Yoncalla. He also leaves 14 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. Mr. Thornton was an uncle of Sheriff Cliff Thornton of Roseburg. The body has been brought to the Roseburg Undertaking company parlors here.

SERIAL STORY

CONSCRIPT'S WIFE

BY BETTY WALLACE

CHAPTER XIV

MARATHA TELLS A LIE

As her husband's voice went on in her ear, Martha Marshall sat down groggily on the chair by the phone table.

"Where were you last night?" he was asking again.

"I'm here." Never afterward could she explain the impulse which made her take a deep breath and say quickly, "Why, Bill, I—I was out with the girls last night. You know, I—I joined their bowling club."

"Bowling!" he repeated. "Bowling! After midnight? You must be a glutton for punishment!"

"I missed your call," she said meekly. "Was it—was it something important? Did you get leave?"

"Important? Sure it was important! I wanted to talk to you. Most of the guys go into town on Saturday nights and have themselves a time. And me, I'm stuck out here, thinking of you."

"They're teaching us a lot of tough exercises to harden us up. Then we march, learn how to care for the rifles, and the right way to hit a mud puddle. Then there's the drills, the manual of arms—oh, lots of higher learning. We're getting battalion training pretty soon. That's harder. Camouflage, scouting, patrol. Am I boring you, Mr. Elliott?"

"No, indeed, Mr. Marshall," grinned Paul. "But I think Martha's yawning."

"It was a gay Sunday. After a huge dinner in a good restaurant, they explored the town. It was full of soldiers. About 5 o'clock they found a cheerful little joint where Bill and Paul drank cold beer, and where a juke box boomed out dance music. Martha danced with Bill, and then with Paul, and then with a couple of soldiers who had somehow crashed the party. We're lonesome," they explained. "We're very lonesome."

"Bill vetoed a movie. 'That's all we do nights, see movies. I bet I've seen every one they're running in town.'"

"Yes, a gay and jolly visit. And yet, saying goodby to Bill, Martha couldn't help the little feeling that something had been missing from their hours together. Some tenderness, some intimate oneness; a joy in being together that had been theirs that other Sunday."

Bill whispered, against her hair, as he held her close in a last farewell, "I enjoyed seeing Paul, honey. But next time, try to make it by yourself. After all, darling, two's company—especially when it's a darned long time between Sundays!"

"In case I forgot to mention it," he began, softly. Martha knew what was coming. She finished it for him, "I love you, darling!"

"Yes."

"Is Trade System Doomed?"

The above topic will be discussed on the 62nd "Wake Up America" broadcast on Monday, January 27, over radio station KRNR from 9:30 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The panel will consist of two able speakers on this subject. One panel member is Eugene F. Sitterly, a director of the American Arbitration association and a committee of the national foreign trade council.

Ready for Service

COLUMBIA, S. C.—They're telling this one at Fort Jackson! A selectee showed up at the Fort with a bicycle, a bedroom suite and a rowing machine. Officers decided the army cots were adequate, that inasmuch as he was in the infantry he wouldn't need the bicycle and as for the rowing machine, well, they don't need oarsmen in the army.
