

Tree Seedlings Made Available to Oregon Farmers

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 11.—Farmers who intend to establish woodlots, windbreaks or shelterbelts this spring should submit their orders for tree seedlings by the first of March, according to State Forester N. S. Rogers. Indications point to an early spring, according to the forester, which will mean the development of the new spring growth in the seedlings several weeks prior to that of a normal season. As soon as the growth starts it is useless to ship trees, for few of them will survive the digging and transplanting.

The Oregon Forest nursery is maintained by the state forestry department primarily for the benefit of the farmers of the state who desire to go into farm forest planting. A large variety of forest tree seedlings is grown which makes it possible to secure trees that are adapted to practically all climatic and soil conditions of both eastern and western Oregon and will also meet most requirements of the farm home along the lines of forest use and forest products.

Information concerning the available species and instructions relative to ordering and planting can be secured by sending a letter to the State Forester, in Salem, Oregon, or by getting in touch with your local county agent.

Motor Vehicle Registration In Oregon is Upped

Oregon fell just 187 short of registering 400,000 motor vehicles during the year 1940, it was revealed by Earl Snell, secretary of state, when he announced that motor vehicle registration for the year totaled 399,813 vehicles. This was the first time in history, however, that automobile registration in this state came so near the 400,000 mark.

The 1940 registration is an increase of 24,575 vehicles, or 6.54 per cent over the total for 1939.

Fees for 1940 totaled $2,961,636.83, compared to $2,738,036.33 in 1939.

There were 326,992 passenger cars registered in the state at the end of 1940, or one passenger car for every 3.3 persons living in Oregon. Only two states top Oregon in the ratio of passenger cars per person. California with a rate of 2.7, topped the nation, with Nevada second with 3.1 and Oregon third with 3.3.

Oregon's Service Establishments Shown by Census

Oregon had 6,256 service establishments in operation in 1939, the census bureau, department of commerce, reported. These establishments did a volume of business amounting to $34,203,000.

Service establishments in Oregon reported employment of 11,376 persons in 1939, of which 7,576 were full-time employees and 3,800 were part-time employees. In addition, 6,428 proprietors were reported who devoted the major portion of their time to the operation of their businesses.

The total pay roll, exclusive of proprietors' compensation, amounted to $10,910,000 in 1939. Full-time employees received $8,788,000 and part-time employees $2,122,000.

Power laundries, accounting for over one-ninth of the total receipts of all service establishments in the state, was the most important business from the standpoint of volume of business.
