DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS

The nations of the world are almost always suspicious of one another. Suspicious breeds misunderstandings, lead to hatred, and often bring on war. As it is with nations so it is with classes and races. So we have race hatred and strife. What is the remedy? It is to be found in part in the definite determination by Christians to rise above distinctions of class and nation and race, and to think of and to treat all men as God's children. If all Christians did this the problem would not be solved because Christians are a minority in the world, but it would be well on the way to solution. Our Lord had us love our neighbor as ourselves, and when He was asked, "Who is my neighbor?" He replied in such a way as to suggest that one's neighbor is anyone to whom one may render a service. My neighbor includes the whole world. Was the world ever more in need of being loved than right now? And who is there capable of loving the world if it be not the people who call themselves by the name of Christian. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart and mind and strength, and thy neighbor as thyself," is a big program for man to live up to. Yet that is what the world is longing for. "A little bit of love." Amen.
