By TED MEIER
PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Those reports that Joe Louis is slipping are premature. The heavyweight champion demonstrated he still is a "killer" by knocking out Philadelphia's Gus Dorazio with one punch—a terrific right cross that landed flush on the "button"—in 1:30 of the second round of their scheduled 15-round championship scrap at Convention hall last night.

Philadelphia's largest indoor fight crowd—a total of 15,902 persons paid a gross of $57,552.62—saw Louis flatten Dorazio after Gus came out of a crouch and tried to land a left hook.

As Gus rushed in Louis struck his own left smack into Dorazio's face. Gus, caught off balance, reeled back and for a second stood erect. For that brief second Louis had an opening and the Brown Bomber didn't miss.

He took one short step forward and let fly his lethal right. The punch didn't travel more than six inches, but it was enough. It landed right on Dorazio's chin and everyone knew the fight was over. Dorazio fell flat on his face completely senseless.

Dorazio made a fight of it during the first round. Bobbing and weaving, as he said he would, he landed a couple of blows to Louis' stomach and looked good on one occasion when Louis backed him into the ropes. His bobbing tactics made the champion miss several times and although Louis said later he had got in a "good uppercut" Dorazio weathered the storm apparently unhurt.

Between rounds Dorazio told his trainer, Jimmy Wilson, "why this guy isn't so tough. He's a sucker for a hook. I'm going out and stiffen him."

Wilson counseled: "Better stay down for a few more rounds and see how things go."

"But then the bell rang," Wilson explained later. "When I saw Gus stand erect I knew it was the end."

It was Louis' 14th defense of the heavyweight laurels he won four years ago from Jimmy Braddock. He intends to start training about March 1 for his next title bout against Abe Simon in Detroit on March 21.

Louis weighed 203 1/2 pounds to 193 1/2 for Dorazio.

The basketball game was fast and thrilling. Days Creek built up an early lead with a fine show of ball handling and were never headed, having a half-time lead of 12 to 7.

In the one-period play-off game to determine which team should go to the tournament, Days Creek jumped into the lead by virtue of free throw conversion. Racher, Days Creek center, connected for a field goal to put the home team in the lead 3 to 0. Hart, Riddle center, however, put the visitors out in front with three field goals in quick succession to give Riddle a 6 to 3 margin with less than two minutes to play. Ward, Days Creek forward, left the game on personals and was replaced by Matthews, who in quick order took long passes from Racher to score two field goals putting Days Creek ahead 7 to 6 at the final whistle.

Paul Valenti, who became the game's high scorer with 19 points, started the Beavers' assault with a goal in the first two minutes of the contest. The Beavers had things their own way for the remainder of the route.

Turco-Bulgarian Pact Not Serious British Setback

By the Associated Press
By DEWITT MACKENZIE
The Turco-Bulgarian non-aggression pact is, as Berlin claims, a feather in the reich's hat, and by the same token it represents a severe though not disastrous setback for Britain and her allies in both diplomatic and military spheres.

Or we can put it this way: The Anglo-allies have suffered a sharp reverse in the Mediterranean theater, but their position as a whole is immeasurably better than it was four months ago.

Within that period they have all but smashed the Roman empire in Africa. This has vastly reduced the threat to Egypt and the Suez canal, increased Britain's domination of the Mediterranean, and so weakened Italy that Hitler has had to rush to her rescue.

As the situation now stands I should say that Hitler has thrown fresh difficulties in Britain's path and has eased his own position somewhat, but may not have increased his striking power so as to influence the trend of the war greatly.

Greek Outlook Dark

There still is a lot to be explained about that non-aggression pact. It is widely interpreted as indicating that Turkey won't fight unless the nazis attack her. That is to say, the Germans can occupy Bulgaria, and they can attack Greece from Bulgarian territory, without fear of Turkish intervention.

Should this prove to be true, it's difficult to see how little Greece can be saved. She has whipped the nazis plenty, but she can't stand up against the might of Germany, and it's doubtful whether the British can give sufficient aid in time to save their ally.

Turkey's Hands Free
However, the text of the non-aggression pact as made public doesn't bind Turkey not to fight in defense of Greece. On the other hand it specifically leaves the Turks free to carry out existing commitments with other countries. One of those commitments is a mutual assistance pact with Greece, and another is an alliance with Britain.

Because of this, London professes to expect that Turkey will hold to her alliance. The Greeks, too, hope for help, but I should say that they must have grave fears their hope won't come true.

One certainly would expect the Turks to fight if the nazis should attack them and try to force the Dardanelles to get into the Near East. Rushing to the defense of Greece is another thing, especially since Hitler has given no indication that he intends to make a drive against the Turks.

Hitler's Motive Seen
Actually, the signs are that Hitler doesn't want to see a Balkan upheaval. He hopes to force the Greeks to make peace by the threat of invasion. If that doesn't work, his war machine likely will start to roll through Thrace probably avoiding any contact with the Turkish frontier.

What Hitler is trying to do, as I see it, is to gain control of the Balkans clear down to the Aegean and Turkish territory, thereby sealing up the Balkan peninsula against a possible British attempt to open up a new battle-front with a drive against the German rear.

Clifford Collins Advances In Air Training Course

Prior to his acceptance as a flying cadet, he attended the University of Oregon, Eugene, and Oregon State college, Corvallis. He is a graduate of Roseburg high school, Roseburg. He played football, baseball, basketball and was on the track and pistol teams and won the Hurst trophy in rifle shooting. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Collins, Northside apartments, Roseburg, Ore.

Collins has completed ten weeks of training at San Diego, where he was enrolled in the Ryan School of Aeronautics. Here, he will learn additional flying on 450 horsepower training ships. At the successful completion of this part of the training, he will go to Stockton, Calif., to the advanced flying school. A ten-week period of training will lead to a commission as a second lieutenant in the air corps, and his wings. They will then be assigned to an air corps unit for further training.

Collins is one member of the second class to come to Moffett field, following its conversion into a school. The local field was thus placed in a similar capacity to Randolph Field, Texas, where the air corps for years has trained its pilots.
