CIO Strike Hits Bethlehem Plant

(By the Associated Press)

The Bethlehem steel mill at Lackawanna, N. Y., important production source of defense armament, was hit by a strike today which in its earliest stages brought a flare of violence.

CIO strikers deployed in a two-mile picket line before the seven gates of the huge plant. Early today there were reports that clubs had swung against the windows and bodies of automobiles which carried employees toward their jobs in the mill.

The strike fell promptly on a previously announced deadline, 9 p. m. last night, after an unproductive conference between the Steel Workers Organizing committee (CIO) and representatives of the national defense commission and the federal conciliation service.

The Lackawanna mill employs 14,000 men, and union leaders declared the strike might spread soon to other Bethlehem plants.

at Bethlehem, Johnstown and Pottstown, Pa. At Bethlehem alone there are 21,000 employees. Rival Claims Voiced.

Three hours after the strike broke, John Riffe, an assistant director of SWOC, called it "one of the most effective I've ever seen." He said only foremen and superintendents remained inside the plant after most of the 4,000 early night shift workers walked out.

On the other hand the plant's general manager, Edward F. Entwistle, called the strike a "dismal failure" and said only one bar mill was shut down for lack of workers.

The union claimed 3,000 pickets were available for duty. Efforts to mediate the strike still are going on, declared Thomas Burns, a defense commission representative, as he and an associate left for Washington.

Visiting Uncle—Charles Snyder of Mt. Carmel, Ill., is spending two or three weeks in Roseburg visiting at the home of his uncle, H. F. Snyder, in this city. It is his first visit to the Pacific coast.
