Oregon Jumper Really Tops the 'Ceiling'

It won't go into the record books as a new world's mark, but Les Steer's mighty jump of seven feet one-half inch at a University of Oregon exhibition marks a new "ceiling" for high jumpers. Oregon track and field fans believe the lanky sophomore jumper will officially duplicate the mark in outdoor meets this spring.

Where Football Once Reigned King, Chow's Now the Thing

From a stadium where huge audiences have gathered to witness Olympic Games to football championships, Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum has become a temporary armed camp for 1200 members of the 160th Infantry, California National Guard, mustered for active duty. Here, some of "Los Angeles Own" line up for chow on the benches of the stadium.

It's Only a One-Horse Shay, but Horse Is One of Many Parts

From parts of a cream separator, a washing machine, sheep shearing gear, lawn mower and a Ford, Roy Siverdon, Redmond, Ore., mechanic, made this one-horse gadget. The horse pulls the wagon at 15 per and runs all day on a gallon of gas. Roy steers with the reins, the horse's head turning the wheels. Like modern automobiles, the horse has three action, and gallops along as it pulls the wagon.

Looks Like a Barge, but New Torpedo Boat's Revolutionary

The invention of Pete di Michels, San Francisco mechanic-inventor, may look like a cross between a shark and a barge, but if it lives up to his claims, a full size model will skim the waves at 100 miles an hour, carry guns and two torpedo tubes. Most revolutionary thing about the new torpedo boat—which has been offered to the United States Navy—is its "dual-drive" propellers, on which Michels holds a patent.

S. F. Girl to Give Up America for Love of Young Nazi

The love of a San Francisco stenographer and an interned seaman from the scuttled Nazi steamer Columbus led to a marriage with one of the Immigration Service guards as best man, and two accompanying the pair on their brief honeymoon. They plan to live in Germany after the war. Left to right: Judge Alden Ames is officiating at the wedding of Alex Rolles and Kathryn Strong.

Time Marches

ATTICA, Ind.—Thirty-six years ago Mrs. Thornton Hunt lost a gold watch.

Just the other day she got it back. Workmen moving a motor in a Danville (Ill.) power plant had found it embedded in the concrete emplacement.

How it got there nobody knew. But a jeweler said it still kept perfect time.

Fire Department Called—The city fire department was called out Saturday afternoon by a fire at 427 E. Douglas street. The blaze caused no damage.

Here Saturday—Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Livingston and daughter, Joan, of Glide, were business visitors in this city Saturday.
