Every state, county and city official or board that handles public money should publish at regular intervals an accounting of it, showing where and how each dollar is spent. This is a fundamental principle of democratic government.

IN addition to getting some folks wet and making them uncomfortable, a rainstorm clears the atmosphere and provides needed moisture for gardens and crops. Thus the effects of an economic storm such as we had during the '30's cannot be rated as all bad. Something unhealthy and slyly subversive of real Americanism was growing up in the twenties. It was the desperate desire of every family to bring its sons up into white collar positions. This brought a sort of cleavage of the population into two classes—those who wore white collars and those who didn't.

If ever there was a false basis for division, that was it. Yet families slaved and struggled, denied themselves everything, so that their sons might achieve a job pushing a pencil or pen instead of working with their hands. Thousands of young men, often ill-qualified, fought their way through college or high school for no better reason than that it seemed to promise later light work at high pay.

That philosophy was fair neither to higher education, nor to American life, nor to the young men. For the primary purpose of education ought not to be to prepare one for a "good job," but to bring about better adjustment of a man to life, with a greater appreciation of its rich and varied phases. Such objectives are no less valuable to a machinist than to a bank teller. And under today's conditions the machinist is more likely to have time and leisure to develop the cultural side of life than the teller.

People began finding that out after the depression struck. Young men and women with high school educations or better found that the white-collar jobs for which they had planned did not exist. They went into the textile and steel mills, into the truck cabs and shops.

And to the surprise of many of them, they found, first, that it wasn't as bad a life as they had been led to believe, and second, that they were all the better mill-hands, drivers, or machinists because of their education.

The whole "white-collar culture" of the twenties is now in disfavor, and the boom in defense industries now draws thousands more from desk to lathe. More and more of the future seems to be going over to the engineers, the chemists, the architects, the skilled workmen. Real brains and brain work will always be a premium, but a white collar just for a white collar's sake no longer looks as good as it used to.

Old and artificial divisions and classifications are breaking down, and a good thing, too. True Americans will wear no man's collar but their own, nor will they be as greatly influenced in the future as in the past by its color.

Greece. It is loosely estimated that they have 100,000 there now and are aiming at a total of 300,000.

It looks like a showdown, but may be only bluff on both sides. Since surprise is one of the most important elements in warfare, ranking almost with superior weight of men and guns, one never can be sure where the blow is to fall until the shooting starts.

IT seems to be fairly clear (as near as anything can be clear in a war-muddled world) that Britain wants to provoke a fight in the Balkans in order to compel Germany to divide her forces between two fronts.

Germany appears to be trying to force a diplomatic alignment that will make it unnecessary for her to go to war there. If that can be done, she can devote all her attention to the all-out attack on Britain to which Hitler has committed himself by his numerous boasts.

So you may take it for granted that the demonstrations of military force in Greece and Bulgaria are intended primarily to back up the diplomats who are working frantically on both sides. The diplomats work with words, but find guns in the background extremely useful.

BRITAIN, of course, needs allies in the Balkans if a new front is to be opened up there. She can't afford to take on a major battle with the Germans all by herself.

So her diplomats, backed by her army and her navy, are working on the Turks, the Greeks and the Yugoslavs. The Germans are laboring mightily to upset her efforts in this direction.

That explains why at the moment there is so much talk and so little shooting in the Balkan area.

Oregon Berry Growers To Plan New Hallock

A hearing to consider adoption of additional standard containers for Oregon berries will be held Monday, March 21, at 2 p. m. at the Portland branch office of the state department of agriculture, Frank McKennon, chief of the plant division, has announced. The hearing is open to every berry grower and others interested and will be held at 513 Oregon building.

Weed Conference Is Set By Camas Valley Grange

CAMAS VALLEY, March 21.—At the last grange meeting a weed identification conference was planned for March 25 at the school house. Everyone is cordially invited to attend this meeting and bring weed plants which are now growing. County Agent J. Roland Parker will talk on weeds and will also exhibit his mounted specimens.

Local Flying Club Buys New Plane

The Umpqua Flying club today announced purchase of a new plane on which delivery is to be taken at the factory in Cincinnati in about five weeks. The plane is an Aeronca Chief, 65 h. p. coupe. It is to be equipped with muffler, controllable pitch propeller, cabin heater and other accessories.

The club, which previously has purchased two planes, is now without a ship. The first trainer, a Welch monoplane, now is owned by Fritz Simpson of Roseburg, and the second, an Aeronca Chief, recently was purchased by Edgar Slack of Sutherlin.

The local club, which in less than two years has provided flying instructions for approximately 150 persons, now has 30 members, all of whom hold solo licenses. It is planned to keep the club membership at about that figure and to confine membership to those holding solo ratings. A new club is planned for beginners. The plane to be purchased will be used exclusively by club members for advanced training and practice and to acquire flying time needed for private and commercial license.

339 or, in other words, the bill to pension the judiciary of the state of Oregon. It stated (quoting) "it is an attempt to save the taxpayers money." If some one were to figure up the interest lost or time lost through delay in the courts caused by permanently incapacitated judges, either through age or illness, the results would be appalling' (unquote). Just why the taxpayers should pay a judge $200 a month because he has become ill or permanently incapacitated passes comprehension. Speed the day, though, when we all will have a subservient legislature and maybe they will even pension eye doctor.

Apparently H. B. 339 will keep the judge on the bench whether he is ill or permanently incapacitated for so the Oregonian editor says. Just how this is to work, I can't see, for I know of many of our old age pensioners who still die even with their $23 per.

Further, the Oregonian says the cost is unimportant as far as the state is concerned. Yet I saw in today's paper that the cost of state accident insurance is to be upped 15%.

Of course our governor will sign this bill. It was his pet. And no other tax bills were to be presented to this legislature this year even to increase the old age assistance.

Shame on a legislature which will pension off a $6,000 to $10,000 judge and refuse to lift higher than $23 to $30 the pension for our other old folks.

So let's referend this bill. If there ever was class legislation this certainly was it. Either that or defeat any judge who runs for office more than twice.

Sunday Churches at the DAILY DEVOTIONS DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS Never has a greater obligation rested upon the church to vindicate and cultivate worship than today. In an age obsessed with material aims and mistaking entertainment for recreation the church owes it to society to demonstrate the spiritual reinvigoration that lies in worship as an exercise and expression of the noblest powers of the human spirit and an opening of the soul to the entrance of the Divine Spirit. The church is failing to meet this obligation and opportunity as is evident on every hand. Worship is both an impulse and an art. It is an art because it is an impulse which requires expression in some degree commensurate with its object. Since it is an art it must be cultivated just as any art must be in order to accomplish its purpose. The root trouble is carelessness. The careless conduct of worship is not only a defect which is alienating many of the best minds from the church, but a sin against the spirit which should be repented of in works meet for repentance. To lead a congregation in prayer is a sacrament. Yet many prayers are not only without form, but void. Void of content, of the spirit of prayer, and of relation to the deeper desires and needs of the congregation and human kind. The pastoral prayer should be vicarious; too often it is self centered. The pastoral prayer is indeed the acme of worship. Amen.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH (Missouri Synod). Corey and Military street, West Roseburg. The service of Sunday, March 23, begins at 7:30 p. m. The topic of the sermon is "The Synagogue or the Basin." ODDITIES

(By The Associated Press) Cold Welcome Home OGDENSBURG, N. Y.—Away from the city all winter, Frank Maloney returned to find his home turned into an ice house. Someone had failed to turn off the water and his cellar was filled with 10 feet of ice, the parlor, kitchen and bedroom with four feet.

TOPEKA, Kans.—Rep. Donald Stewart (R) calls his latest bill a proposal to encourage truth in advertising. It would "promote better government by prohibiting political platform promises." Candidates still could point with pride and view with alarm, however.

It Worked

GARY, Ind.—Twenty-five firemen, two ladder trucks, an aerial and service truck, two 1,000 gallon engines, a lighting unit and the assistant chief's car answered an alarm to firebox 34. There stood Mrs. Yancy Stetson. She said she'd lost the key to her house and couldn't get in. A friend had advised her to call the fire department.
