

Sports Factory Head Looks After Interests Here

W. L. Marble Recites Success of Father-Inventor and of Buying Timber in Douglas

The Marble Manufacturing company, which makes approximately 60 items well known to sportsmen, timbermen and all lovers of the outdoors, is an example of how a major industry can grow from a small beginning. William L. Marble, senior member of the firm, said here today. Mr. Marble is here looking after extensive property interests. Accompanied by Mrs. Marble, he is visiting in Roseburg for the first time since 1909.

"My father was a timber cruiser and lumberman in Michigan," said Mr. Marble. "He had an inventive mind and was a great hand with tools. As his work took him into the woods in all kinds of conditions, he began to invent and make tools and various kinds of aids. He made a waterproof match safe, compass, special types of knives and axes. He wanted a small, light gun to use for small game, and the Marble Gamegetter resulted.

"His friends and neighbors saw these inventions and they wanted them. Finally, the requests of these friends became so numerous that they kept my father busy making the articles and so he built a small work shop. The demand kept growing and so did the factory, until today it is a major plant."

The senior Mr. Marble, Webster L. Marble, now is deceased, but the sons carry on the business. William Marble was a traveling salesman for his father's business from 1906 to 1909 and during that period visited in Roseburg on a number of occasions, but in 1910 went to Michigan and made his home at Gladstone, where the company's factory is located, and has since been in charge of sales and distribution for the company.

Timber Bought Unseen
"In 1910 my father became interested in timber in Oregon and upon the advice of friends purchased several large tracts in Douglas county," Mr. Marble relates. "He never saw the property until in 1913, when he made a visit here to look over the lands."

"I had planned from year to year to return to this Oregon country but had never found it convenient until this year when Mrs. Marble and I cut short our vacation in the south to come to Roseburg."

Mr. and Mrs. Marble are stopping at the Umpqua hotel, and he has been making a personal survey of each of the several large timber tracts located in various parts of the county.

Due to the necessity of immediate return to Michigan, he planned to leave tonight.

The factory, he reports, is far behind on orders due to the fact that dealers, fearing the effect of the national defense program and that the shortage of metals may curtail production, are placing orders for the company's products far in advance of the usual delivery time.
