Local Radio Man To Take Part In Emergency Drill

Louis T. Haigh, local amateur radio operator, will participate this week-end in a national emergency drill by the American Radio Relay league of which he is a member. The test is to be made in cooperation with the 3,700 Red Cross chapters throughout the country.

Mr. Haigh operates station W71DU, on 1834 kilocycles, with 150 watts of power. The station is located at Coos Junction.

Approximately 25,000 amateur operators will participate in the test drill during the period from 5 p. m., April 4 to 11:59 p. m., April 6. During that period messages from Red Cross chapters all over the nation will be relayed to three central points—San Francisco, St. Louis and Washington, D. C.

The radio relay league is organized to serve in any emergency and has performed valuable work in several major disasters, and its current test drill is to secure practice in handling messages on a nation-wide scale.
