"ANN WILL NEVER KNOW-" CHAPTER XIII

APRIL felt her fingers freezing, and after awhile she realized her feet were numb and soggy wet from standing in the snow back at the garage.

"You have it all wrong, Kent," she whimpered, much as Nip, the puppy, did when he was hurt. "No, I think not." Kent's words chipped like icicles. "You stumon a situation which amused you and made the most of it." Please, you're not being fair." "Fair?" He gave a short laugh and went on, "You fooled me, of course. Your voice and Ann's are alike. You wore her coat. You had some diabolical way of discovering where we had our favorite outing." "You'll understand, if you'll let me explain." He ignored this and with a quick hurtful grip on her arm. demanded, "Where's Ann?"

"Ann-she went away." By some miracle, April stopped short. Ann didn't want Kent to know about the audition. It would be even worse to tell him now that the great hour with Vivano had been a failure. Besides, Kent was opposed to Ann's hoped-for career. White night, she thought, white lie. "You see," she was stammering, 'Ann didn't know you were coming home. She was on a little-

"Kent," she began, "whatever I've done. I'm sorry." No, that waan't it. That waan't what she'd meant to say. In the fog of her thoughts, the name "Ann" leaped out again. "It's Ann!" she cried. "Ann!
