CHAPTER III BEATRICE HUNTINGTON

DAVENPORT sat up very straight in her car, and looked fixedly at the back of Jenkins' head as he drove through the slow-moving, heavy, late after-She had promised Clarence that she would marry him next week. Promised because, for a moment in his arms, with his lips on hers, she had believed that he was right.

"We shall be so happy! No other pair in history have ever been as happy as we shall be, darling," he had whispered. "No more discontent, my love. I promise you, our life will hold more than parties and social foolishness and wild running around. I love you, and you love me. We shall have a marriage the world will won-

Beatrice realized that Clarence was utterly serious, and with the realization come a rush of pride that she had not, after all, been fooled by a fortune hunter. Clarence loved her and wanted to make their marriage a real and solid bond. But after he was gone—while

White Sox Hand Yankees Their 5th Straight Defeat

By JUDSON BAILEY Associated Press Sports Writer) The Chicago White Sox are pertricks again in American league, hovering around second place with a collection of to open a two-game series with costoffs while other star-studded clubs wallow in despair. Yesterday they whipped out a 14-hit of fensive and sent the Yankees crashing to their fifth straight defeat, 13-1. Lefty Ed Smith pitched nine-hit ball and shut out his foes after the first inning.

The Cleveland Indians kept rolling with a 64 victory over the Boston Red Sox, with Feller doing a ninth-inning relief chore. He was rushed in with two on He was rushed in with two on and none out, and retired the Beatrice saw is broad wave of people—10 or 12 direast—in surging ranks that went far up the block—pushing their way from one side of the street to the other. She remembered, then, the subway station at Times Square. That's where they were going. To the subway.

All at once, Beatrice opened the car door. "I'll get out and walk, Jenkins. This is too slow." A curious, baffled restlessness possested her, "You take the car to the garage. And I won't need you tonight, Jenkins."

Bloodworth singled with two out in the seventh.
