

Roseburg Golfers Matched Against Cottage Grove

The Cottage Grove country club will send a 23-man team to Roseburg for a tournament here Sunday, the local club was informed today. The visitors also will bring a team of six or more lady players. The members of the Roseburg club are urged by officers to plan to participate in the Sunday tournament and to be present on the grounds at starting time. The Roseburg club hopes to even the honors with Cottage Grove which was victorious in a tournament recently played there.

It also is announced that play in Sunday's tournament will serve as a qualifying round for players desiring to enter in the Willamette valley tournament to be held at Eugene, June 22.

Each club will be privileged to enter an 8-man team. Instead of picking eight of the club's leading players, it has been decided to permit all players desiring to enter to declare their intention before the start of play Sunday. Scores in the tournament will be used as a basis and the eight players with lowest scores will be selected to represent Roseburg in the tournament at Eugene.

Cleveland Routed By Boston, 14 to 1

By JUDSON BAILEY (Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Boston Braves are up in third place in the American league with a brand-new five-game winning streak and are only three games behind the pace-making Cleveland Indians, whom they crushed yesterday, 14-1.

Ted Williams hit his ninth homer of the year, Dom DiMaggio collected his first, Cronin tripled with two on, Foxx doubled with the bases loaded—and the firing went on all afternoon.

It was the worst rout of the year for the Indians, who didn't score until the eighth and wouldn't be in first place today except that the Philadelphia Athletics took care of the Chicago White Sox, 9-3.

The Detroit Tigers took a ragged 5-4 decision from the New York Yankees in 10 innings to complicate the American league race.

The St. Louis Browns sent Luke Sewell off to a good start as manager by whipping the Washington Senators, 4-2, for a sweep of their three-game series.

Rain washed out the National league program.

SERIAL STORY DOLLARS TO DOUGHNUTS

BY EDITH ELLINGTON

YESTERDAY: Bee successfully avoided meeting a king but catches the full force of Miss Dane's anger when she returns to the door. How does she react? Read now, please for her job. Suddenly Miss Dane bursts into tears, contending the conversation that makes her act so sternly, and to Miss Getz: "It wasn't like this in the old days, was it, Getz?"

DEFEAT FOR AN IDEA

CHAPTER XXI
BEATRICE HUNTINGTON DAVENPORT backed off slowly and unbelievably, from the spectacle of Miss Dane sobbing like a baby, her head on the capacious bosom of Miss Getz. Miss Dane's tortured words rang in her ears. "It wasn't like this in the old days. The store had some heart, then. Mr. Huntington wasn't hardboiled, he didn't drive people..."

This, she thought slowly, this is what's at the root of the whole trouble with this store. Everybody's being driven. The store has become a Frankenstein—running wild on the momentum of its own strength, its own power.

The store made money for Grandfather. But he loved it, too. It was his servant, his child—never his master.

And now it's making more money. Now the love is gone, there's nothing but profit behind it. Profit, no matter what the cost.

She looked down at herself, her hands touching her sides curiously. "The store has been run to make money for me. For me, because I was useless, because Bruce Sheldrake and the trust company thought it was what I wanted..."

A moment later, she denied that for themselves. Because they had the power over it. Because it made them strong and feared. They knew I didn't care. I simply didn't count. I got the money and they had the power."

Her lips tightened, grimly. "That's all over now. I'll show them!"

Miss Dane and Miss Getz had disappeared into the cubicle where Miss Dane worked over her purchasing records. Beatrice decided. "I'm going up to see Mr. Bruce Sheldrake right now!" She marched to the elevator, the light of battle in her eyes.

BUT when the elevator door opened, Anthony Bradley walked out. "Anthony, listen—," she began, before all the other considerations overwhelmed her. She stopped, and suddenly her face was bleak and tired; there wasn't even any joy at seeing her in his eyes.

"Anthony, what's the matter?" "He turned me down," Anthony said hoarsely. "He—he listened to it all. He made me explain a dozen times. And then—" he winced. "Then he laughed. He said I was crazy. He told me—" Oh, the pain in his voice, the bitter pain. "He told me to go back to floor-walking."

"He dared! He dared to—to—" The enormity of that sneering dismissal stabbed her.

"Yes, he dared, all right." Anthony moved his head as if to clear it. "He kicked me out, because he's the merchandise manager and I'm just a hired hand."

"Wait, Anthony! Come back there with me! I'll fix him!" "What could you do?" Anthony asked wearily. "It's no use, Bee. I'm licked."

She stood very still, searching his eyes. Anthony's hands were curled into fists. He struck at a counter, savagely. "No, I'm not licked! I'll show him yet! I'll show them all!"

"Anthony," she said steadily. "If you could go right into Bruce Sheldrake's office—if you could take this idea straight to the Duchess herself—would you do it?"

"What did you say?" "If you could march right over the head of the merchandise manager and convince someone higher up that you're right—"

"You don't understand!" he cried impatiently. "It's not the satisfaction of getting the best of him! It's not even the prestige of having an idea of my own tried out. That's not what I'm after! I want it proved, don't you see? Any crackpot notion might be presented to Sheldrake, or that Davenport girl, and tried out and it wouldn't mean anything. Just that the guy who presented it knew how to coax and flatter. This thing is mine. It's solid! It's good! I want to shove it down throats, not have it put over on account of anyone's influence!"

He lowered his voice, apologetically. "Oh, the deuce with it! I could have pussyfooted around, nuzzling strings, but I thought the hard way was better. So that leaves me holding the bag, and it leaves him laughing."

"How could you have pulled strings, Anthony?" "There are always ways."

He was striding to the Budget Department, and she had to run to keep up with him. "Never mind. Just let's shove it down a sewer. But I won't give up! I'll get another idea sometime!"

BEATRICE realized then that she couldn't march into Bruce Sheldrake's office in the high-handed, devastating manner she had envisioned a moment ago. Something Anthony had said, a moment ago, stuck in her mind. "I want it proved."

She wanted her conclusions about this store proved, too. Just to descend on Mr. Sheldrake, screaming that the store was heartless and unjust, could too easily be put down to a temperamental vagary, she saw slowly. He'd soothe her, he'd get oily and unctuous after she had summoned Mr. Weeming and the president of the trust company. But they'd all be like grownups handling a child in a tantrum. They wouldn't take her seriously.

The indignity of realizing how richly she merited not being taken seriously was like a cold slap of water in her face. "But all they know about me is that I was wildly extravagant, and bought Clarence an airplane and suits and a string of polo ponies. They think I'm spoiled, stupid, and criminally irresponsible."

Unconsciously, she had slowed down her pace behind Anthony through the crowded aisles. She stopped at a counter, now, and stared at a shining chromium toaster. "I've got to do this the hard way, like Anthony. I must have proof. How can I get it?"

Sactos Win Over Seattle; Portland Takes Padres, 12-3

(By the Associated Press)

Munger pitched Sacramento to a 3 to 1 victory over Seattle last night, boosting the Senators to a Coast league lead of nine and a half games.

Munger allowed six hits and an unearned run. Gregory gave Munger a close duel for the six innings he worked.

Portland, with Hilleher pitching, continued its winning ways, walloping San Diego by the decisive score of 12 to 3 in the third straight victory over the Padres.

Dilbeck, out for his fourth win of the season, held the Beavers to one hit until the fifth inning when Owen's single touched off a four-run explosion.

San Francisco stood alone in third place today after breaking a deadlock for the berth held jointly by San Diego since Sunday by drubbing Hollywood 10 to 4.

Oakland climbed out of the cellar once again and shoved Los Angeles back into the basement spot by defeating the Angels 3 to 2 in 11 innings.

Climbing of Mt. Thielsen Requires Forest Permit

Mountain climbers who expect to climb Mt. Thielsen are invited to register at the Diamond lake guard station before making the climb, according to V. V. Harp-ham, forest supervisor.

Mt. Thielsen is a 9,173-foot peak located on the summit of the Cascade range near Diamond lake, which is on the Umpqua National forest. The trail to this peak leaves the road at Diamond lake.

Forms for registration are maintained at the forest guard station where the U. S. forest service maintains a forest guard.

The regional forester has made this registration requirement in order to help avoid mountain climbing accidents such as have occurred in the past on other peaks of Oregon and Washington. This requirement is made by authority of regulation U-6 set up by the secretary of agriculture. A number of other peaks in Oregon, such as Mt. Hood, the Three Sisters, Mt. Washington, Mt. Jefferson and Mt. McLoughlin, also come within the scope of this regulation.

ONE-CENT DEFENSE JOB

Smallest "national defense" contract is held by Mrs. Emmalace Ottestad, who, by bidding one cent, was low for the job of renovating a government-owned flag at Bellingham, Wash. The postmaster, who called for the bids gave her 90 days for the job.
