DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS

Forgiveness is a great event. It means peace after trouble. It is the sun coming out again after the clouded sky and the rain; but at its center it is more than that. It calls for surgery, for probing, and for excision of all that tangle of malice and greed. Some of us say to protect ourselves, that we can forgive but we cannot forget. We cannot forgive because we cannot stand the surgery of it. The excision of our peevishness and selfishness of our infected ego. We cherish up our grievances in our souls like old odds and ends in the attic until they clutter up the whole place. We grow weak as Christians with the infection of our own cheap insistence on our rights or with our kept up peevishness. "Malice drinks half its own poison when the surgery of forgiveness takes place there is power. There is strength when you are right with God and man; hate dissolves, fears fade, and the heart sings because it is clean of its former lovelessness. Christ was never so great as when He could say: "Father, forgive them they for they know not what they do." Resolve today to take out of your life that weakening thing of holding something against someone else. Make room for power and peace. Amen.
