Coreless, Seedless Apple Produced By California Tree

HUNTINGTON PARK, Calif., June 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Libbie Wilcox, who likes to monkey with trees and flowers, has discovered a coreless, seedless apple.

The U. S. department of agriculture says its first of its kind and is experimenting with blossoms seeking the secret of the fruit in which there's no waste.

The tree grew from a seed Mrs. Wilcox planted. It's 10 years old and always has borne coreless, seedless fruit, she said. The apple is red and exceptionally large, averaging more than a quarter-pound.

Mrs. Wilcox sent specimens to the agriculture department last year. Horticulture experts wrote that they had seen coreless, seedless pears but never such a rarity in apples.

They were anxious to examine the blossoms. They had to wait until this spring's blooms were available but received several choice ones a few days ago. Experiments are to be conducted at a government station in Maryland.

Mrs. Wilcox, 60, describes herself as "simply a housewife whose hobby from childhood has been monkeying with trees and flowers. There's nothing scientific about me. Call it an accident if you will, or a freak of nature."

Mrs. Wilcox said she preferred not to say what variety of seed she planted. She said further details must await results of the government experiments.

attendance was not as large as had been expected, but approximately 100 lodge members with their families and invited guests participated in the day's festivities. A potluck dinner was enjoyed with the lodge furnishing strawberries and cream. Entertainment included softball, horse-shoe pitching, a treasure hunt, various types of games and contests and dancing.

Scottish Rite Dinner Tonight—The Scottish Rite dinner will be held tonight at 6:30 o'clock at the Masonic temple, followed by the conferring of the fourteenth degree.
