POET'S CORNER

THE FINAL TRIUMPH
Forever cries of wild despair
Shall not rend the midnight air,
Nor from burning cities rise
Consuming flames that light the skies.
Forever tyranny and greed
And robbery shall not succeed.

Exploited nations, conquered now
By Germany's gigantic hosts,
Where Freedom with her trampled brow
Is driven from their blood-stained coasts,
Shall rise and fight and gain release
From nazi bondage; then unite
And shatter military might
Of axis nations, till the peace
Which England fight for,
through increase
Of countless years, shall never cease,
And countries near and countries far
Shall be forever safe from war.
—Alden Harness.

Berserk Squirrel Nips Portland Residents

PORTLAND, June 20.—(AP)—A roving rodent with fight in his eye left a trail of claw and tooth marks on six residents of Portland's west side heights area yesterday. It brought his list of victims to eight since Saturday.

The battler was a squirrel, apparently gone berserk. Saturday it leaped on the shoulder of a man strolling in a park and bit his face; Wednesday night it entered a kitchen and attacked a woman, and yesterday it ranged widely, biting children and adults alike.

One 14-year-old boy stood his ground with a bean shooter and despite two direct hits amidst the squirrel advanced and nipped the marksman.
