DAILY DEVOTIONS

DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS

A popular serial broadcast declares, "Life can be beautiful, whether it is beautiful or not depends upon what you do with it. Personal beauty may be a gift, a natural endowment but real and soul deep beauty is cultivatable. The essential beauty of personal or social life is not dependent upon things, nor upon environments, but upon the Christian graces of candor, chastity and charity. Often personal affairs get out of hand and everything seems to go wrong, but life which is impregnated with the spirit of Christ holds its charm no matter what the circumstances may be, and invests itself with the resplendence of great dreams and noble deeds. A life is no fairer than the soul is fair. Surely he who has captured the beauty of God has a joy forever. No wonder the Psalmist wrote the words, 'Establish thou the work of our hands upon us, for make no mistake, beauty is as beauty does. It is not a garment, nor a pose, but it is as deep as the soul is deep. Give us of Thy strength of soul and Thy beauty of character, that we may have the charm and attraction that rightfully belongs to the children of God. Amen.'

Navy Must Adhere to Stated Enlistment Time

WASHINGTON, June 27.—(AP)—The senate naval affairs committee rejected today a navy request for authority to hold volunteers now with the fleet in service after their enlistment period ends.

The navy proposed that it be given the right to exercise such authority if congress declared the national interests were imperiled but Chairman Walsh said committee members felt this would involve a breach of contracts.

The committee reported favorably, however, a revised bill which would make future volunteers subject to such a provision. Under its terms, men who enlist in the future for the regular six-year period could be retained in service if congress ordered it, but men now in the navy would be released at the close of their regular service periods.

Registrants Lax In Quiz and Contacts

Failure of registrants to fill out questionnaires completely and to keep in contact after filing of questionnaires is causing some difficulty for the local selective service board, Secretary R. L. Preston reported today.

Questionnaires furnished each registrant require the listing of dependents. Married men also are required to show whether wives are employed and, if so, how much the registrant contributes to the wife's support.

Many questionnaires, Mr. Preston states, fail to include this information.

Birth of children, increasing the number of dependents, should immediately be reported and any other changes in the status of the registrant, with regard to the number of dependents, should be promptly reported. The board also should be notified with regard to changes in address, changes in employment or changes in physical condition.
