Good Opportunity

FOUR or more young men who enlist in the navy from this area have an opportunity to become members of a special naval training class being sponsored by the Elks lodge of Oregon. This unit will consist of 140 men. They will be assembled in one group and will be sent in a unit to the San Diego naval training station. It is promised that the Oregon men will be kept together and thereby be enabled to enjoy a comradeship in service. It is an attractive offer and one that should be brought to the attention of young men who are thinking of joining the navy. The navy recruiting officer who makes his headquarters at the Roseburg chamber of commerce office can give full details.

What, Not Enough Rain?

THE wonderfully fine Fourth of July weather that was so much enjoyed yesterday was especially appreciated because of the rainy June, just ended. We had feared that there would be no summer weather at all this year but summer did arrive, and just in time for the holiday.

And speaking of the weather, and about the unusual rainy season here is one to paste in your hat: We are SHORT of our normal quota of rainfall for the year, according to official figures from the U. S. weather bureau office. We need exactly 1.55 inches to equal normal precipitation for this date!

Good Picnic

ALSO, speaking of weather, we are reminded that the Roseburg Rod and Gun club committee that so ably handled the fine Fourth of July public picnic at Idleyld yesterday was so nervous about the prospect of rainy weather on the Fourth that they discussed calling the whole thing off. What disappointed them they would have been if they had yielded to that temptation. As it turned out the weather was fine beyond expectation and, for that matter so was the picnic and the crowd. May we suggest, after personal observation of the affair, that it be made an annual event and conducted along very much the same lines. It was a success.

Where Were The Flags?

THE holiday display of flags on our downtown streets was disappointing. Doubtless the plan recently worked out for a flag placing service conducted by the Boy Scouts has not yet been entirely perfected. It is too soon since that project was undertaken to be critical. However, it is important that we do not become lax in patriotic observance.

ing that Russia doesn't INTEND to fold up.

FROM Tokyo:

The Japanese government announces it has chosen a policy for "coping with the crisis precipitated by the Russ-German war" but keeps the policy a secret.

Immediately after the announcement the German and Italian ambassadors call on Premier Matsuoka and as soon as they are shown out the Russian ambassador goes in. What they learned of any(thing) is known only to them and Matsuoka.

DOMEL (Japanese news agency) says "quarters close to the government" indicate that Japan's course will be disclosed by actions rather than words.

AFTER the victor becomes more clearly apparent.

WAVELL, who licked the Italians in Libya and then took something of a drubbing from the Germans, losing most of his gains, is sent to India—swapping jobs with the British commander in India, who is sent to Cairo.

It may be either a kick in the pants for Wavell or preparation for a possible German invasion of India if and when Russia is taken care of.

INDIA has tempted a lot of conquerors. Alexander went on from Egypt and Persia to invade it. Napoleon WANTED TO, but never could quite manage it. Genghis Khan died before he got around to India, but one of his remote descendants conquered the bulk of the Indian peninsula and founded a dynasty that ruled for six generations (the Moguls).

What Hitler will do if he conquers Russia nobody knows—not even Hitler.

DAILY DEVOTIONS DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS

In poetical measures the always masterful and exquisite Alfred Tennyson gives the best interpretation of the majestic and beautiful scheme of "Cosmic Destiny" when he writes: "Not one life shall be destroyed or cast as rubbish to the void. When God hath made the pile complete."

There is nothing accidental or incidental about the universe. There is a positive evolution of the good, everything is moving on toward perfection. The first chapter of Genesis is crowded with dramatic interest at the close of each day's creation God pronounces it satisfactory. God saw that it was good, but at the end of the sixth day, when man was created, He said, "It was very good." The survival of the fittest must be it reverently basic in all creation. Truth may lose a battle but it will win in the war. Goodness, justice, law, order, truth, love and the Golden Rule will in the end prevail. This is the inevitable cosmic destiny. I doubt not through the ages one increasing purpose runs and the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the sun's run.—(Tennyson.)

Picnic at Idleyld Draws Big Crowd

The Roseburg Rod and Gun club picnic at Idleyld Friday provided holiday entertainment for an exceptionally large crowd. The club, anticipating a large attendance, provided ample accommodations, despite the fact that a greater number of persons attended than had been expected.

The various features arranged by the entertainment committee furnished ample pleasure for the picnickers. Particularly effective was the patriotic radio program at 1 p. m., when festivities were halted to hear an address by President Roosevelt, which was made audible by means of radio and a public address system.

Entertainment included flycasting, trapshooting, horseshoe pitching and various other activities. Special arrangements for games, contests and sports for children was made by Miss Muriel White, physical education instructor in the local schools.

The picnic was arranged by a committee headed by Bruce A. Yeager, secretary of the club, with a number of local members in charge of various departments.

Idle Brooklyn Goes Back to Top as Cards Lose Twice

By JUDSON BAILEY (Associated Press Sports Writer) The St. Louis Cardinals, blew a double-header to the Chicago Cubs yesterday and turned the National league lead over exclusively to the Brooklyn Dodgers, who were kept idle by rain.

The Cardinals lost all three games of their series with the Cubs, who took both of yesterday's contests, 6-5 and 5-2.

St. Louis, outitting the Cubs 13-8 in the opener, had a two-run lead in the eighth. Then Dahlgren, cast off by both the New York Yankees and Boston Braves, came through with his 12th home run of the season to tie the score. Chicago pushed across another marker to win.

In the nightcap Shoun was steaming along with a 2-0 advantage when the Cubs suddenly sprang a four-run rally. Nicholson contributed a double to this uprising and later hit his 15th home run of the season.

The rain that washed out the Dodgers and New York Giants also prevented the New York Yankees-Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox-Philadelphia Athletics encounters in the American league.

Cleveland Wins Twice. The Cleveland Indians whipped the St. Louis Browns twice, 9-8 and 3-2, to reduce the margin between first and second place to two games. The Browns routed Feller in the first tilt.

The second game was won on Bondra's two-run double in the seventh.

The Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers divided the other American league games. Thornton Lee outpitched Bridges at Detroit to win the first for the Sox, 3-2. Detroit captured the second, 10-6.

In the other National league action Boston spanked the Phillies twice and Cincinnati divided with Pittsburgh. Walters pitched the Reds to a 6-0 shutout in the opener and Vince DiMaggio settled the Pirates with a three-run homer off Pearson in the fourth.

Salvo pitched six-hit ball for Braves in breaking his 10-game losing streak with a 4-3 verdict. Tobin did even better with a two-hit masterpiece in copping the second, 2-0.

San Diego Again Shoves Rainiers Out of 2nd Place

(By the Associated Press) Seattle and San Diego switched places in the Pacific coast baseball league yesterday for the third time this week—with San Diego coming out on top. The Padres moved back into second place with 10-1 and 3-2 victories in the holiday doubleheader.

The San Diegans pounded Southpaw Lloyd Brown for 14 hits in the opener, and scored all ten runs in the first and sixth innings. Four successive hits in the sixth inning of the nightcap gave the Padres the two runs that put them out ahead.

Sacramento came back after two straight defeats at the hands of Portland to beat the Beavers 4-2 and 2-0 in a twin bill. Orell, Portland hurler, gave up all four runs of the opener in the fourth inning.

Capliger of the Solons pitched a one-hit shutout in the second game.

The San Francisco Seals have hit a new low for the season, slipping into sixth place after dropping both games of last night's doubleheader to Hollywood.

Hollywood won the opener 6-2 behind Osborne's good pitching, then went on to take the nightcap 6-5 when Seal Fielder Brovia overthrew the base and let Rosenberg race home with the winning run.

Los Angeles and Oakland split a double-header, the Angels taking the first game 9-0, the Oaks the second 2-1.

Flores limited Oakland to three hits in the opener, and no Oak player got farther than first base.

SERIAL STORY LOVE POWER BY OREN ARNOLD

YESTERDAY: Despite the widespread destruction caused by the explosion, only a few lives are lost. Police blame sabotage. Carolyn and Robert are at the laboratory, unable to explain the blast. Only half of the precious X-999 was lost, but the remainder is a constant threat. Carolyn is angry when Leana takes Robert away.

CHAPTER VIII

IN Bob Hale's office the telephone rang. Carolyn, as his secretary, arose to answer it, but plainly Bob was not used to having a secretary yet. He reached for the handpiece himself.

"Hale talking," said he. "This is Ken Palmer, Dr. Hale," came the voice. "Uh, would it be all right if I inquired about Miss Tyler? Carolyn? Fact is, I'd like to talk to her, if it won't be too much trouble."

"She's right here." He mentioned to Carolyn. "It's Mr. Palmer."

Ken, it developed, wanted mainly to know where she had been keeping herself, and did she go out to the explosion yesterday, and was she trying to dodge him, and could he have a date tonight.

"Ken, you're an old darling," she said, with some fervor. "The truth is, I have been quite busy. This is a new job, you know. And Ken—I think I'd better not"—she glanced at her employer, who was feigning no interest—"better not set any dates for this week, because I'm expecting a lot of night work for a while. Dr. Hale's secretarial work has been rather neglected."

Dr. Hale, who technically hadn't been listening, interrupted, "Oh, please go right ahead, Miss Tyler!"

She stuck her ground. She and Ken talked a bit more and she bade him goodbye perhaps a little more sweetly than necessary. Something inside her made her do this, she realized. She felt at once guilty and pleased.

IN studied manner, too, Bob Hale resumed their conversation where it had left off. "And so we cannot admit having caused the explosion, Carolyn, or admit having produced the X-999 at all, because if we do the news will bring all manner of cranks, foreign agents, and such."

"Of course, Bob." "And yet, it is my fault, I ought to tell the police. This thing is new! Untried. That explosion was an accident pure and simple. You say you have already arranged to pay money secretly to the bereaved families, which is well, if you can avoid being traced. Their tragedy can't be helped. And industry can absorb its own losses. Can't it? For so important a thing as you have, Bob? And when you do announce your discovery, you can make payment in full. The men financing your work insist that it be kept secret now."

He suddenly looked straight at her. Carolyn Tyler was an eternal surprise to him. One hour she was a swift stenographer, nothing more. On a moment's notice she could be an altogether dainty and feminine somebody with conversation and mannerisms far removed from anybody's office. And now again she was talking in calm business sense, crystallizing his own thoughts for him, helping him face the problem at hand in a practical way. He nodded at her slowly, appreciatively.

"I have an idea," she went on. "You are distressed to death, Bob about what to do with the remaining X-999, now that you have actually produced a quantity of it. You say you don't dare experiment on it here because of the danger, and yet a tragedy occurred when you tried to move a part of it. Now look—wouldn't it be feasible to—"

The telephone rang again and this time it was long distance wanting Bob himself. She waited. But the conversation turned out to be a long one, not concerning the matter at hand.

Presently, she returned to the small anteroom off his office, which was now her own private office. She sat there scanning her shorthand notes, waiting for him to finish. The connecting door was left open but she couldn't see Bob nor his desk. She could just hear him. And—she liked to hear him talk. She liked his distinct enunciation. She liked the lazzie profundo hint to his voice, a deep rumble which could rise much higher in moments of stress. He had known much stress in the past 48 hours.

SHE was hurriedly reviewing those things when she heard an outer door open and she knew, by some strange subtlety of sound and intuition, that Leana Scrim had come to Bob. Even then the telephone conversation was ending.

"Leana," Bob greeted her. "Sit down." "Robert, I have been thinking." She plunged right in. "I do not believe you fully appreciate the magnitude of what we have here."

SHE said it so dramatically that it she cast a veritable spell. Carolyn, overhearing, was herself impressed, not so much with what Leana said as with the woman's intensity of feeling. It amounted almost to vehemence.

Robert barely murmured in reply. "Leana!" Obviously she had startled him.

"You and I are young, Robert. Young! The future beckons us. We have come to know each other well. There is a bond, between us."

"You and I know that what we have here will render all other power sources obsolete. Within a year, two years, five years at most, all of America's electric plants, all steam and diesel and gasoline engines, every phase of industry must be revolutionized, as you and I direct! Have you forgotten that?"

"Don't you see, Robert, dear, how far-reaching it is? Almost at once, we can control a continent. And then—and then—oh, Robert!"

In her little room Carolyn could almost hear her own heart pounding. As usual, when one eavesdrops, intentionally or otherwise, the things she heard here were exceedingly disturbing.
