"I Ain't Fighter Used to Be," Says Joe Louis, Champ
Detroit, July 5.—(AP)—Fistic experts who contend that Joe Louis has slowed down had the word of the heavyweight champion today that "I ain't near the fighter I used to be."
The negro battler, who has defended his title 18 times since acquiring it in 1937, admitted: "I guess I've slipped pretty far, won't know how far until my next fight with Lou Nova in September."
Then, without batting an eye, he added: "If I find then I've slipped too far, I'll give it all up. Ain't no use goin' on—just to get punched around."
His reason for thinking he had lost some of his ring acumen and dynamite punch? "Why," he answered, "what happened in the (Billy) Conn fight. I have him in the third round and again in the fifth, but I can't finish him. I knew then that I've slipped. Chappie Jack (Blackburn, his trainer) kept telling me that no little fellow should beat me, especially no little fellow who was 25 pounds lighter'n me."
"But I can't stop him till the thirteenth round. Then, I think it was Conn who beat himself. He fight hisself out in the twelfth and then I finish him in the thirteenth."
"WHAT has caused him to slip? "Dunno for sure," said Louis. "Guess it was a couple of things. I been working too hard. I been in training since November 13 and ain't had but one little vacation of two weeks between fights."
"I guess my training for Buddy Baer in Washington helped some, too. The building I trained in had a tin roof. It was awful hot there. * * * Figured it was the heat that done it."
