Boy Scout Camp At Wolf Creek To Be Opened July 20

The Boy Scout camp at Wolf creek will open Sunday, July 20, and continue through August 2, with an anticipated attendance of approximately 30 boys. Fred A. Hurd, chairman of the camp committee, announced today. The camp has accommodations for approximately 50 boys, and additional registrations will be accepted this week. Mr. Hurd reports. The committee, he states, has the names of several boys who would like to attend the camp, but who cannot afford the $10 registration fee, which pays all camp costs. If local persons desire to sponsor one or more boys at $10 each, they are requested to contact J. P. Molschenbacher at the local office of the California Oregon Power company, who is in charge of registration.

The camp will be under the direction of Scout Executive Robert Dill of Eugene, who will be assisted by Ralph Johnson of Portland. A full program has been arranged, it is reported, and will include two hikes.

The boys are expected to furnish their own transportation to camp Sunday and are expected to arrive in time for the first meal at 6 p. m. Mrs. Bertha Taylor, who has had experience at a number of scout camps, has again been engaged as camp cook. The committee, Mr. Hurd states, would appreciate donations of jams, jellies and canned fruits, and asks that such donations be left at the office of the chamber of commerce. Letters and packages for the boys also may be left at the chamber of commerce office during the progress of the camp. The Lockwood Motor company and Hansen Motor company are providing camp trucks which will be used in transporting mail and supplies.

The committee in charge of arrangements, aside from the chairman, includes F. L. Crittenden, J. P. Molschenbacher, Fred Lockwood and Earl Wiley.
