Supplies Flown to Fire Fighters at Bear Butte

Supplies were being sent out by airplane today to a forest service fire crew at Bear Butte, about four miles west of Mt. Bailey. Ray Hampton, fire assistant on the Umpqua national forest, reported. The fire was started more than a week ago during an electric storm, and is burning in buried rubble under rim rock, where it cannot be reached. A three-man crew is being kept on guard over the blaze to prevent it from spreading, and the men are being supplied with provisions dropped on parachutes from an airplane.

Three fires were started last night in the Diamond lake district and one on the North Umpqua district by a mild electric storm. All of the fires were under control today and none was considered dangerous.
