of the occupants survived was received. Cochran radioed that the plane had plowed hard into the side of the mountain, and it appeared from the air that all the officers and men must be dead.

Three Die in Crash of Plane on Deer Hunt TULARE, Calif., Oct. 6.—(AP)—High on a remote clearing in the shadow of Mt. Whitney, the crumpled wreckage of a six-passenger private plane today marked the spot where a sudden nose-dive carried three Tulare sportsmen to their death.

Their bodies awaiting removal, lay by the heap of twisted metal, itself buried almost completely in the ground.

Coroner Brooks identified the three victims as Willis Morrison, pilot and co-owner of the plane; Glen Fry and Howard Dill. They left Tulare Saturday to fly to 8,000-foot Monache Meadows on a deer hunting trip.

Brooks said a high wind apparently caused Morrison to lose control of his ship as he banked in an approach to a landing on the flat. A former stunt flyer, the pilot had been ferrying hunters into the mountains from Bakerfield and Lone Pine as well as Tulare.

took the position today that there was no necessity for federal control of wages but that some kind of price control legislation apparently was "immediately necessary."

The CIO head contended that wage increases were not responsible for current price increases, adding that this argument was "being used as a new touchstone to justify attack upon organized labor by those who have always sought labor's destruction."

Price control legislation pending before the house banking committee contains no wage fixing provisions but a number of witnesses have argued that inflation could not be controlled without control of inflationary wages.

Meanwhile, an all-out price control measure which would impose ceilings on virtually everything from wages to defense profits and agricultural products was offered to congress by Rep. Gore (D-Tenn.), member of the banking committee.

New Nazi Drive Aims At Moscow's Capture the new German drive, Hitler might augment it by shifting some of the Leningrad siege forces if he is convinced that the Russians can be contained there.

Some London war observers were inclined to ask whether the indicated Moscow push were not part of an elaborate sham to cover up the failure to take Leningrad "with the overwhelming swiftness" of which the high command once boasted.

London commentators expressed belief there was small chance of immediate change in the "stabilized" siege and defense of Odessa on the Black sea—a city long since by-passed by the Germans' drive through the Ukraine.

Continued fierce German pressure toward the Donets basin and Kharkov in the eastern Ukraine was acknowledged, but the subsidiary attempt to break into Crimea through the Perekop isthmus was said to have been eased by Russian counter-attacks on the German flank there.

Reds Say They're Stronger

While the Germans were talking about a new turn in the war and their high command was claiming the capture of 12,000 more Russian prisoners in the southern Ukraine, Russians declared their red armies were in stronger positions than at any time since the beginning of the invasion, now in its 16th week.

The Russians also claimed their armies had rolled back the German besiegers of Leningrad as much as two to three miles at some points and had pushed forward at least 21 miles on the southwestern sector—in the Ukraine.

The Germans claimed the capture of the little Russian-held island of Aburka, three miles south of the recently captured island of Oesel off the Estonian coast.

Russia officially replied to Adolf Hitler's Friday claims of heavy red casualties by calling the fuhrer's figures "fantastic and delirious data" and charging that he was "afraid of telling the truth" on German losses to the German people.

Huge Losses Reported Here are Russian losses as announced by Alexander Scherbakov, director of the soviet information bureau:

1,128,000 casualties — 230,000 men killed, 720,000 wounded, 178,000 missing; 7,000 tanks; 8,900 guns, and 5,316 planes. He further asserted that the Germans have lost 3,000,000 casualties, almost as much in 15 weeks of warfare as the kaiser lost in two years of the world war, 11,000 tanks, 13,000 guns
