Make It a Genuine University

If the news report from the summer meeting of the Oregon state board of higher education was correct, the October meeting of the board will be a most important one. It is scheduled for the last week in this month.

Although this subject has been successfully confused and action on it delayed by a few violent partisans, the facts have prevailed unaltered until there is no longer any good reason why the board should fail to give the university the right to grant science degrees.

Science and mathematics courses are already being given. The granting of this request would not take anything away from any other state educational institution.

The state board will do an excellent service for higher education in Oregon by improving the academic rating of our state university if it will make a clear and straightforward ruling authorizing the University of Oregon to grant degrees in the pure sciences—botany, physics, zoology, chemistry, geology and mathematics.

Peace Has Its Victories

In the midst of the din of war, happens the most titanic war of all time, peace timidly steps up to register a small victory.

Yet who shall say it is a small victory when Argentina, Brazil, the United States, and other American nations peacefully persuade Ecuador and Peru to conclude an armistice in their border war, each withdrawing troops from the disputed area pending negotiations for more permanent settlement?

In any time, such an achievement is not negligible. In times like these, such a victory for peace, small though it is in the face of terrible World War II, is perhaps even greater than it would be in normal times. It shines like Shakespeare's little candle, "a good deed in a naughty world." Yet it is from just such tiny flickers of light that great beacons are kindled.

next had a limited supply of second structure fuel. At that moment another gas palace showed up. (By this time the outskirts of the city had been reached.) A French youth came out in careful English asked: "Shall I fill it up?" He didn't get hugged, but he'll never know how narrowly he escaped.

Under the Canadian system, dealers are given a quota, based upon consumption in designated months in the past. They apportion the quota to suit themselves.

In September, most of them oversold at the beginning and ran short toward the end. Hence the shortage mentioned here. On the last day, the government relented and announced that just this one time dealers would be given an additional supply to finish the month, but NEVER AGAIN.

One gathered from the tone of the announcement that the Canadian government means business and intends to reduce civilian consumption.

HAM, bacon and eggs appear on the menu cards in Quebec and Montreal, along with a statement urging customers not to order them, thus conserving the supply for export to Britain.

Aside from gasoline, this request for voluntary cooperation is the only evidence of rationing apparent in Canada to the casual visitor.

MEN in uniform are somewhat more numerous in Quebec and Montreal and Toronto than in the cities on the American side—especially men in the distinctive blue-grey uniform of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Otherwise, evidences of military activity are not much more apparent to the casual traveler in Canada than in the United States.

KING'S Highway No. 2, Canada's most important east and west road, follows the St. Lawrence river from Quebec to Montreal and thence on to where the St. Lawrence issues from Lake Ontario through the Thousand Islands.

It is a rich valley, old and closely settled. As in New England, the villages meet at their edges. For hundreds of miles it is practically one continuous village.

This conveys the misleading idea that Eastern Canada has a congested population—mistaken because the St. Lawrence valley is a mere thread as compared with the vast expanses that lie to the northward in Quebec and Ontario.

DAIRYING is the leading industry of the valley, and Holsteins the leading breed of dairy cows. In fact, practically no other breed is seen at all.

Needy Oregon Homes Granted WPA Aid Fund

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—The work projects administration has notified Senator McNary that the president has approved an allocation of $181,400 for state-wide free home assistance in Oregon for inclusion in the state's WPA program.

The program will provide aid in general housework, care of children, simple home care of the sick, aged and chronically ill in homes of the needy.

The first aid will be given in homes only where the home maker is totally or partially incapacitated, where the homes are moth-eaten or where assistance is needed because of old age or chronic illness.

Nazi Spying On British Mail Is Revealed at Trial

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—A federal bureau of investigation agent testified yesterday that he heard a confessed German spy say that the contents of all British diplomatic pouches bound for this country were examined and photographed by a Nazi agent in Lisbon.

The FBI agent, William Friedeman, a government witness at the trial of 15 men charged with espionage conspiracy, said also that he had overheard two of the defendants on trial discussing the best way to procure London's Washington-bound diplomatic pouches and that William G. Sebald, American counter-espionage agent posing as a German spy, had to caution them against throwing a diplomatic courier overboard.

Friedeman said he overheard the conversations in Sebald's office. Motion pictures were made secretly of several of them, and they showed various defendants in conversation with Sebald. Friedeman said that on April 25, 1941, he assumed his eavesdropping position in Sebald's office and made notes of the conversation between Sebald and the defendants: Erwin W. Siegler, ship's butcher who with 17 others have pleaded guilty to the indictment; Leo Waalen, a painter, and Erich Strunk, a steward, who are on trial. Siegler and Strunk were then working on the liner Siboney, chartered by the American export line and plying between New York and Lisbon.

Stanford Victory Streak Broken By Oregon State, 10-0

By RUSS NEWLAND SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13. (AP)—Stanford's T-formation has been stopped, finally, its consecutive victory string closed out at an even dozen. That's still the headline news from the latest skirmishes along the far western football front. The coast conference title race today is as scrambled as your breakfast eggs.

This mudpuddle version of championship chase followed the crash of the Standard gridiron empire. Until it toppled last Saturday before the charge of an Oregon State college squad in the rain at Corvallis it was a one-team race, Stanford setting the pace. The Indians had no excuses. The Clark Shaughnessy method of applying the technique of a formation of 1890 origin failed in the clutch.

A soggy field cut down the speed of the defending conference and Rose Bowl champions. The wet ball made handling of it more difficult for Frankie Albert, who soared to all-American quarterback fame, by his field generalship and play execution in 1940. Oregon state won the game 10 to 0 and earned it. The Beavers, unimpressed by the importance of their opponents from the south, were charging on every play. They actually clinched the win with a first period field goal. Those three points looked as good as gold as the game wore on. Recovery of a fumble on Stanford's 13-yard line added a touchdown in the third quarter. As it turned out, the extra seven tallies weren't needed.

Oregon State draws a bye in this week-end's battling. Stanford, meanwhile, has something of a "breather," in its game at home with the University of San Francisco. The result doesn't count in the conference standings. Oregon and Washington, both back in the role of contenders as the result of latest victories, figure to get by their next league opponents, the former meeting California at Portland and Washington going into action against the University of California at Los Angeles, at Seattle.

Oregon Beats Trojans. The Oregon crew, big and tough, turned in an impressive 20 to 6 win over Southern California with Curtis Meacham, south-paw tossing right halfback, stealing the show. California, lacking its best halfback threat, Jim Jukovich, dropped a 13-to-0 decision to Santa Clara, and showed a little but a stout line in the first half.

Washington, on comeback road after losing to Oregon State, 9-6, a week ago, bumped Washington State down the ladder with a 23-to-13 win.

The W. S. C. record, therefore, shows two conference losses and in this respect it is in a class by itself.

Washington State travels to Los Angeles to meet Southern California this Saturday, in what shapes up as a toss-up contest.

Going into the fourth week of football, only one major team enjoys an unmarred record. It belongs to Santa Clara. The Broncos won their first two games on the strength of a half a dozen basic plays and then cracked down on California in the renewal of this rivalry discontinued four seasons ago.

Santa Clara comes up this Saturday with the first intersectional game in this section, meeting Michigan State at San Francisco. The Broncos figure on more opposition from the mid-western team than they've had thus far. Michigan State gave big Michigan a tough, if losing battle and came through for an upset win over Marquette last week.

Oregon Higher Schools' Enrollment Shows Drop

EUGENE, Oct. 13 (AP)—Oregon's six schools of higher education enrolled 8962 students for the fall term, a decline of 8 per cent from last year, Chancellor F. M. Hunter said Saturday. The decline in the three colleges of education was 13 per cent, while at the University of Oregon, medical school and Oregon State college it was slightly more than 7 per cent.

Hunter pointed out that enrollment still is 62 per cent more than in the fall term of 1933.

Oregon Wool Bids Topped By High of 46 Cents

PORTLAND, Oct. 13 (AP)—In dull bidding little more than one-fourth of 2,000,000 pounds of wool were bought at the annual Pacific northwest wool auctions during the week end. Buyers Saturday purchased 280,000 pounds, bringing total sales to 385,000 pounds.

Hitler Trying for Armistice Before Winter, Opinion

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT (By the Associated Press)

It is entirely likely that an armistice between Adolf Hitler and the Russian in the course of his Moscow offensive were merely of those harbingers of new attempt to make a peace with Britain before the winter snows blanket the battle dead in the east. Hitler wants extermination of the red armies and complete conquest of Russia-in-Europe, no compromise. It is only necessary to fit his own sentences together to realize that he is willing to give the British a peace offer which, on paper, might look fairly attractive.

Eight days ago Hitler chose to say again that he did not blame the bulk of the English people for the war, only Churchill, "the co-agitators" and "international Jewry." The day before he made that speech he told his troops (a fact later was disclosed for propaganda purposes) that they could win "the most essential condition for peace" if they smashed Russia in the decisive battle then being fought.

Subsequently, in a cascade of proclamations Hitler had his underlings shout to the world that the battle with Russia was won. Actually, developments of the last few days prove that was not true. This morning the Germans have to say, in effect, that they are still about the business of winning it.

It is, therefore, difficult to escape the conclusion that Hitler is conducting a deliberate and grandiose campaign to make the people of Britain (and those of America, too) believe that there is no use trying to sustain Russia any more and that it would be better to patch things up before the Germans, fattened by the wealth of all Europe, turn west with all their remaining men, planes and guns.

But this, according to the most reliable indications, is not going to work. First: Hitler does not know the people of Britain, never did, never will. Second: The British and American statesmen who were in Moscow even while the great German offensive was raging have returned convinced that Russia is not licked and determined not only to provide Russia with supplies but to keep open a way by which they may reach the red army lines.

Indians of R. H. S. Girding for Clash With University Hi

Elated by their first victory away from the home field in several years, the Roseburg Indians were settling down today to hard work in preparation for the game to be played here Friday night against the strong team from University high school of Eugene.

Roseburg won 13 to 6 at Lebanon, Friday, the first time for many moons the Indians have come home with a scalp at their belts after straying off the reservation.

The Indians exhibited strong offensive power in Friday's game and showed ability to play defensive ball on the goal line, but still were weak on defense in the forward wall in mid-field.

Roseburg used power for the first touchdown, marching down the field with long gains on power plays into the opposing line, and powered over the second score, after the ball had been carried from the Roseburg 2-yard stripe to the Lebanon 30-yard marker on a pass from Young to Wimberly.

Lebanon's score came on drives into the Roseburg line after the Indians had once driven their opponents back from the one-yard marker.

The local players came out of the game without serious injuries, and all members of the team are expected to be in fine condition for the game here Friday night.

Wesley Little, son of Mrs. Cora M. Little of Roseburg, has been promoted to the rank of corporal at the U. S. Marine station in Shanghai, China, it was learned here today. During his service with the Marines, Corporal Little has seen sea duty and has visited many islands of the Orient.

Defense Quiz

If the many Americans who are sharing in the present greater national income spend all their increased earnings, how do they lose?

A. Such spending tends to push up the prices of products available in limited quantity. Thus all, or almost all, of the expanded income would be absorbed by higher prices, leaving little or nothing to show for greater earnings. By restricting our spending, and investing in defense savings bonds and stamps, increase in total spending will be prevented and we can buy the goods which are scarce without a rise in prices.

Q. Can the treasury call defense savings bonds for redemption prior to maturity?

A. No. But a defense saving bond may be redeemed by the owner at his option, in accordance with treasury regulations.

Note—To buy defense bond and stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also stamps are now on sale at retail stores.
