

Kearny Crippled While Fighting to Protect Convoy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The U. S. S. Kearny had rushed to the rescue of an embattled convoy and was helping to beat off a mass U-boat attack when she was torpedoed, the navy reveals.

The department added the few new details to the Kearny's yet unfinished story last night. It also released official pictures of the wounded ship as she made an unnamed port, her beams bent and twisted, her plates torn by the force of the torpedo's explosion.

The Kearny, so the navy reported, was escorting one convoy of merchant ships on the night of October 16 when she received distress signals from another convoy nearby that was being attacked by several submarines.

Speeding to the scene, 350 miles southwest of Iceland, the Kearny began dumping depth bombs as the attack on the convoy continued. One torpedo missed her, passing ahead. A second miss went astern, but the third struck her amidships on the starboard side, well below the waterline.

Commander Saves Craft

The explosion tore a gaping hole in the side of the destroyer at a boiler compartment and ripped upward through the steel deck above, showering the bridge with wreckage. Eleven men were killed and ten injured, two seriously.

Almost cut in two, the Kearny was forced out of the engagement, but the prompt action of her skipper, Lieutenant Commander A. L. Danis, was credited with keeping her from going to the bottom.

The account led to the belief that the ships the Kearny was originally escorting either were empties headed for North American ports, or were considered reasonably safe from attack at the time.

Fourteen Die in Crash Of Airliner Near Fargo

The crashup occurred on a flat prairie. Captain Bates, dazed, was found wandering in a field by motorists attracted by the flames. There apparently were no witnesses to the catastrophe.

One report was that Captain Bates had to be restrained from trying to climb into the burning wreckage to rescue the victims. This information came from Charles Bailey, Columbus, O., and Eveline Berg, Fargo beauty operator, enroute home from a suburban night club when they saw the fire.

They said Bates was led back to the scene after being found in a field. Bailey quoted him as mumbling about freeing the occupants and urging the gathering crowd to keep away from the wings because they contained gasoline.

Miss Berg, who accompanied Bates to the hospital, said he apparently tried to tell what happened en route. Bob Donahue, local advertising man who also rode in the ambulance, said Bates mumbled something about the air speed indicator not working and about controls not responding because of ice. Captain Bates had been quieted by sedatives administered in a Fargo hospital. He was to be questioned later.

Cause Still Mystery
Private investigators had determined that the plane circled over the Fargo airport before the crash. It was reported to have come in as is customary in making an instrument approach and then swung back as if to make the landing. That swing never was finished. Estimates were that the plane was above 500 feet when it shot over the Fargo field as the ceiling at that time was estimated at that height.

After a hasty check of the wreckage, George Gardner, NWA vice president in charge of operations, said:

"Until every bit of evidence from the ship and crash scene are correlated by the various investigators, it isn't even possible to even guess what happened."

Two-Way Revision of Neutrality Act Conceded

G. O. P. Support Promised

Senator Thomas (D-Utah) told the senate today he was ready to join three republican colleagues Austin of Vermont, Bridges of New Hampshire and Gurney of South Dakota—in seeking outright repeal of the neutrality law.

The three republicans, who had the backing of Wendell L. Willkie when they suggested outright repeal, have not yet decided whether they will press their proposition on the floor. If it is not approved, both the republican group and Thomas have said they would support the administration revision legislation.

Tracing the history of the last world war, Thomas said that it was not the arming of American merchant ships or similar "incidents" that caused this country to enter the conflict. Instead, he said, it was the broader issues of morality and human freedom.

"World wars are not caused by incidents any longer," he continued.

"Japan has deliberately attacked two of our gunboats. We did not consider that a cause for war. Germany has attacked our ships and we did not consider that a cause for war."
