Let Us Be Thankful

FOR peace and plenty, on this Thanksgiving Day, 1941, let us be truly and humbly thankful.

They are inestimable blessings in a world where millions are ravaged by war and gaunt-bellied with sheer want.

But what does it mean to be thankful, really thankful? Surely there is more in thankfulness for human beings than the waggling-tailed gratitude with which a dog thanks a kind master for a bone! Surely there is more in thankfulness for men and women with souls than to bask smugly in well-being and to return thanks that are half gratitude, half self-satisfaction and a feeling of superiority.

For sentient human beings there are the seeds of death in thoughts like those. Thanksgiving for men and women must be more than that. It must include dedication. It must include humility. It must include determination to be worthy of great benefits, whether those benefits have been bestowed or not.

The American Thanksgiving was instituted by a handful of pioneers on a rocky and barren coast who had struggled manfully for bare existence with death by starvation or the sudden arrow from the thicket always behind their shoulder. Many died.

Those who lived were grateful, humbly thankful for life itself under rugged conditions which would cause many of us today to cry out in pain and anger. Yet by the sheer fact that a few bushels of corn had been reaped from their labors, they were prompted to a little festival of thanksgiving. Their example has been so forceful that every generation of Americans has followed it.

Every generation has seen that America grow and expand until today it is a mighty nation. Every generation has seen the material blessings multiply until to day that nation is the most favored of all the nations of the earth. Still we observe the Thanksgiving Day our fathers ordained.

May some portion of their humility, their fortitude, their sense of dedication and determination to be worthy of their blessings descend to us as we bow our heads in thanks, praying that we may be worthy in some relation at least to our unique favors.

Careful of Your "Tummy"

IF you want to continue thankful the day after Thanksgiving, you'd better be careful today. Remember that awfully heavy feeling right about here where that third helping of turkey sat for days after last year's Thanksgiving dinner?

The best advice, of course, is not to over eat. So be a little man and pass up the stuffing the second time it comes around. A brisk walk before the turkey comes out of the oven should help make room deep inside for more of the candied sweet potatoes. An even more moderate walk after dinner may help—if you can pull yourself out of your chair.

But after all, Thanksgiving comes only once a year so let's throw caution to the wind-knower. Who wants to be thankful tomorrow? Today's the day. And besides, the drug stores will be open tomorrow and they've got to live.

ing of the English channel if and when. It is generally assumed that the Germans are preparing to invade the Caucasus, where the bulk of Russia's oil is located. If you will glance at your map, you will see in a moment why force is crossing at Kerch is desirable. It provides a short cut to the Caucasus. Otherwise it will be necessary for the nazis to fight their way clear around the Sea of Azov and lengthening of their communication lines is becoming a problem already.

(THERE is always the possibility that Turkey may be brought over to the German side, either by diplomatic guile or by force. That, as you may wish to show you, would provide the opportunity for a German pincer movement against the Caucasus.)

(ANOTHER strategic point in the Russian fighting is at Tikhven, which you will find on your map about 100 miles eastward from Leningrad.

After finding Tikhven, go on and locate Archangel. You will note that Tikhven lies at the beginning of a long road with Archangel at its end.

It is a DIFFICULT road, but Murgansk and Archangel are the shortest route for getting American supplies into Russia and it may be taken for granted that Germany will do everything she can to close it.

That is one reason for the long and stubborn defense of Leningrad.

(KEEP your eye on this situation in the north. It provides the principal reason for German pressure on Finland to keep on fighting.

Surgeon Slain By Former Patient

DURHAM, N.C., Nov. 19 (AP)—Dr. Robert Randolph Jones, Jr., 38, cancer and plastic surgeon, was shot to death at Duke hospital yesterday by a former patient, who, coroner R. A. Harton said, was obsessed with a belief that he had been mistreated in an operation.

The patient, John S. Baldwin, 38, of near Whiteville, N. C., was overpowered by several physicians while he was still lying at Dr. Jones with two pistols. Six bullets entered the surgeon's body, the coroner said.

Sheriff E. G. Helvin said Baldwin would be charged with first degree murder. Coroner Harton related that Baldwin told him that Dr. Jones performed some plastic surgery on him about six months ago and that Baldwin was not satisfied. Then, the coroner said, Baldwin brooded over the matter until he was obsessed with the belief he had been mistreated.

Passenger Boat Cordova Freed From Alaskan Reef

SEATTLE, Nov. 20 (AP)—A coast guard cutter today pulled the 2,000-ton passenger liner Cordova free from the Alaskan reef where she grounded yesterday while en route south from Juneau to Ketchikan.

The Cordova, relocated at high tide, proceeded to Ketchikan in the company of two coast guard vessels and an army transport which had taken aboard the little liner's passengers.

The 238-foot vessel of the Alaska Steamship company messaged the coast guard last night that she was "high and dry" on treacherous Chatham's reef and required assistance to remove her passengers.

Disability in Landson Case Set at 40 Per Cent

Disability of 40 per cent was determined here by the circuit court jury which yesterday heard the suit of John Thomas Landson against the state industrial accident commission. Landson claimed 75 per cent impairment of the function of one arm as the result of a fall from a building while employed by the Umpqua River Navigation company at Galloway. The state accident commission had granted 19 per cent disability. The action was brought to establish a basis upon which compensation will be paid.

Court was recessed today for the Thanksgiving holiday, but will reconvene Friday to hear the case of Joe Neavill versus the state industrial accident commission, the third suit against that body to be heard during the November term of court.

Leave for Portland—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Watson and daughter, Arden, left this morning for Portland to enjoy Thanksgiving day and to remain over Saturday to attend the art exhibit. They will return here Sunday.
